

HLED 5022 (online, asynchronous), 3 credits
Unlocking the Potential of Public Health

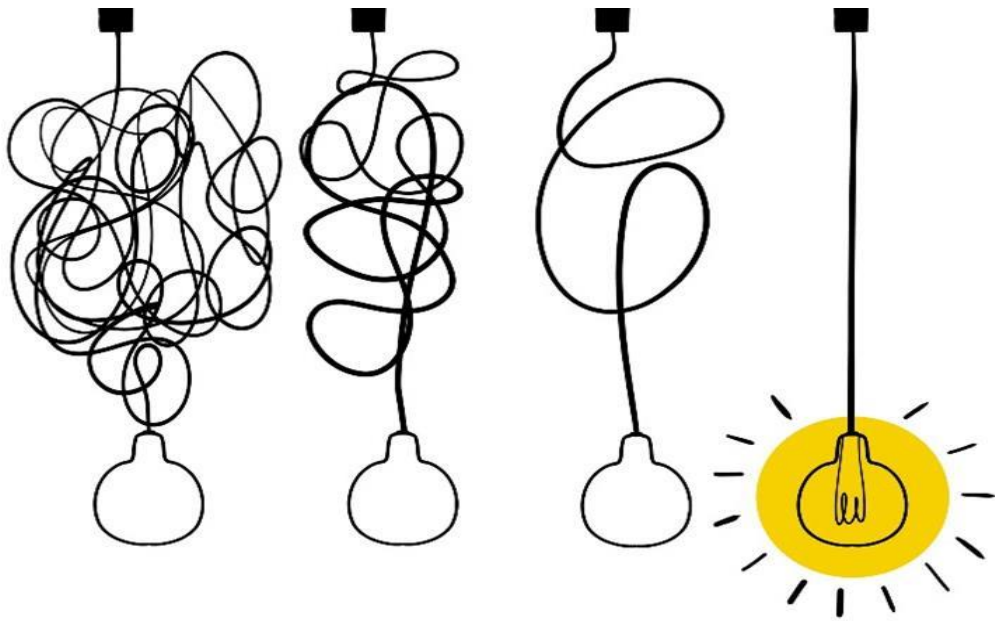

Figure 1: <https://www.campaignlive.com/article/you-start-answer-now-covid-19-flipped-creative-process-better/1680982>

Public health training helps us organize the chaos of health crises.

Using practical exercises and problem based learning, you will investigate how social structures shape our health and how to alter them to improve community health. Asynchronous online instruction. Work on the course on your schedule.

This is a graduate level course. High performing undergraduates (of any major) are welcome and encouraged to register.

This is a required course for the UW

Graduate Certificate in Community & Public Health.