

4-H ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS

Mastery Evaluation

Is the Essential Element of MASTERY part of your 4-H club, project group, or event? Use the checklist below to assess the work you are doing as part of the Wyoming 4-H program.

Engagement in learning

	1	2	3	4
Meetings, events, and activities have a balance of education, recreation and business
Members working together, planning activities, and laughing
Members mature and grow from first year members to club officers
Club agenda is available to members

1: Most of the time. 2: Some of the time. 3: Rarely. 4: Not observed.

Opportunity for mastery

	1	2	3	4
Active project leaders
Youth involved in activities at the county level
Members set project goals and gain knowledge through hands on activities
Members share their achievements with each other
Members receive public recognition for their achievements
Members assist or mentor other members
Members exhibit or demonstrate what they have learned

1: Most of the time. 2: Some of the time. 3: Rarely. 4: Not observed.

Looking at the checklist above, in what areas do you struggle to create an environment of mastery (items where you entered 3 or 4). Use the Mastery handout or talk to your 4-H Educator about ways you can improve the environment at your 4-H club, meeting, or event. Write your ideas on the back.
