

With a rich history, outdoor adventure, culture, and agricultural roots, Laramie offers a unique lifestyle. Located in southeastern Wyoming, ~45 miles from the state capital, Cheyenne, and 130 miles from Denver, Colorado, Laramie has a population of 30,816, providing a neighborly atmosphere and warm small town feel with all of the amenities.

Also known as the “Gem City of the Plains,” Laramie sits at 7,200 ft above sea level, surrounded by the Snowy Range Mountains, the Vedauwoo Recreation Area, and the Medicine Bow National Forest, offering beautiful scenery with an abundance of outdoor activities, including fishing, camping, skiing, snowmobiling, hiking, biking, and climbing.

The beautiful historic downtown is full of unique shops, coffee houses, and local restaurants, as well as numerous murals by local artists.

Once a tent railroad town, Laramie gained international attention in 1870 when Louisa Swain became “the world's first woman voter under laws guaranteeing absolute political equality.” Today, Laramie today is bustling with technology, academia, industry, and agriculture, giving it a diverse mix of residents.
