Introduction

The American Heritage Center (AHC) is the University of Wyoming's (UW) repository for historical manuscripts, rare books, and university archives. Internationally known for its historical collections, the AHC first and foremost serves the students and citizens of Wyoming. The AHC sponsors a wide range of scholarly and popular programs including lectures, symposia, and exhibits. A place where both experts and novices engage with the original sources of history, access to the AHC is free and open to all.

Collections at the AHC go beyond both the borders of Wyoming and the region, and support a wide range of research and teachings activities in the humanities, sciences, arts, business, and education. Major areas of collecting include Wyoming and the American West, the mining and petroleum industries, environment and natural resources, journalism, military history, transportation, the history of books, and 20th century entertainment such as popular music, radio, television, and film. The total archival holdings of the AHC are roughly 75,000 cubic feet (the equivalent of 18 miles) of material. The Toppan Rare Books Library holds more than 60,000 items from medieval illuminated manuscripts to the 21st century. Subject strengths include the American West, British and American literature, early exploration of North America, religion, hunting and fishing, natural history, women authors, and the book arts.

Organization of the Guide

Entries are arranged alphabetically and include the title, dates, collection number, collection size, and a brief description of the collection's creator and contents. Many of these collections have more in-depth finding aids available online through the Rocky Mountain Online Archive (<http://rmoa.unm.edu>). Catalog records for all collections may be found at <http://uwcatalog.uwyo.edu> (for best results, limit search scope to "American Heritage Center").

Visitor and Contact Information

Current contact information and visitor information including location and hours of operation for the AHC Reading Room and the Toppan Rare Books Library can be found at <http://www.uwyo.edu/ahc>.

Ackerman, Forrest J.

Papers, ca.1920-1987

72 cubic ft.

Acc. #02358

Ackerman (1916-) was an editor and writer of works on science fiction, fantasy, and horror. He published several articles and books, and published the first science fiction fan magazine (fanzine) in 1932. From 1958 to 1982, he edited "Famous Monsters of Filmland" fanzine, and beginning in 1969 edited a series of science fiction novels, "Perry Rhodan." In 1947 Ackerman created a science fiction literary agency. Ackerman was well known for amassing the largest collection of science fiction, fantasy, and horror memorabilia including books, magazines, movie props, and posters. He attended the first World Science Fiction Convention in 1939 and continued to attend fan conventions annually. Ackerman helped create the "fandom" subculture by starting the first science fiction fan club in 1930. He received the first science fiction "Hugo" award in 1953, and is credited with coining the term "sci-fi."

Collection contains materials relating to Ackerman's long career in science fiction (1941-1987) plus a large portion of his memorabilia collection (ca. 1920-1987). Correspondence is both personal and professional with many notables in the field concerning his many projects. There is a large amount of fan mail mainly responding to "Famous Monsters" fanzine. Included are photographs of Ackerman, manuscripts including some of "Perry Rhodan" books, and reel-to-reel tapes of speeches at the 1970 Count Dracula Society meeting. There is also an index compiled by Ackerman of sci-fi and fantasy books published from 1947 to ca. 1980. Memorabilia consists of advertising and promotional material including movie posters, lobby cards, handbills, and pressbooks for many science fiction, fantasy, and horror movies from the silent era through the late 1980s. There is also a large number of photographs of movie stars and movie and television stills. Included are scripts for the "Planet of the Apes" series of movies, and television scripts for "Lost in Space," "Star Trek," "The Outer Limits," "Circle of Fear," and "Night Stalker." Barrow , Minnie F. and Merris Clark

Papers, 1902-1916.
1.35 cubic ft. (3 boxes)
Acc. #00078

The Barrows were early settlers and entrepreneurs in Douglas, Wyoming. Merris C. Barrow and Minnie Florence Combs were married in Nebraska in 1877 and soon moved to Laramie, Wyoming, where Merris worked for the "Laramie Boomerang." In 1886, the Barrows began publishing their own newspaper, "Bill Barlow's Budget," at Fort Fetterman, Wyoming, with Merris as editor and Minnie as bookkeeper. When the town of Douglas, located eight miles from Fort Fetterman, was founded in the fall of 1886, the Barrows moved their weekly newspaper to the new town site. In 1904, the newspaper began publishing a monthly supplement, "Sagebrush Philosophy," written by Merris under the pen name Bill Barlow. The Barrows also operated a stationery and office supply business located in the "Budget" building and served as subscription and sales agents for magazines and newspapers, including the "Denver Post." Minnie continued operating the businesses after Merris' death in 1910 and published "The World of Just You and I," a selection of Bill Barlow columns, in 1911. She sold the "Budget" in 1914 and the stationery store in 1917. Minnie died in Thermopolis, Wyoming, in 1944.

John Franklin Carter was a New Deal columnist syndicated under the pen name of Jay Franklin. He was the author of more than 30 books, mostly on politics. He was born as one of seven children to Rev. John Franklin Carter in Fall River, Massachusetts in 1897. He soon moved to Williamstown, Massachusetts, where he learned to write stories as a way of compensating for a childhood illness. In 1922, he left Yale early and went to Italy as a representative of the Williamstown Institute of Politics. Shortly after, he became the Rome correspondent for the London Daily Chronicle and the New York Times. In 1928 he moved to Washington serving as an economic specialist for the State Department for four years. He then became a correspondent for Liberty magazine and Vanity Fair. From 1934 to 1936 he was in the office of the Under Secretary for Agriculture until he began his column, "We the People." He was also a radio commentator for NBC from 1938 to 1939. During World War II he did political intelligence for the White House. Carter worked for Harry Truman as a speechwriter during the whistle stop campaign of 1938, but he chose to resign from the White House staff shortly after Truman's election. After he switched to the Republican Party, Carter became an economic research consultant for the New York State Department of Commerce. In 1950, he was appointed director of public relations for the New York State Publicity Department. He died in 1967.

Acc. #05381

James Lawrence Kilgallen had a career in journalism that spanned seventy-seven years. Born in 1888 in Pittston, Pennsylvania, Kilgallen started working as a reporter in 1903 for the "Chicago Daily Farmers and Drovers Journal." Kilgallen assumed half ownership and editorial duties of the "Laramie Daily Boomerang" in 1913 and served in that capacity until 1914, when he became editor of the "Indianapolis Daily Times." Kilgallen worked briefly for United Press International and the Associated Press before serving with the International News Service from 1920-1958. In 1958 the International News Service merged with United Press International. Kilgallen spent 1960-1966 with the "New York Journal American" before it folded. Kilgallen served with the Hearst Headline Service from 1966 until his retirement in 1981. Kilgallen covered national and international stories, including the 1919 World Series Black Sox Scandal; the Lindberg-Hauptman trial (1932-1936) for the kidnapping of the Lindberg baby; the surrender of Germany at Rheims, France in 1945; the Bikini atoll atomic bomb tests; and the Alger Hiss trial in 1948. Kilgallen also interviewed such notables as Henry Ford, John D. Rockefeller, Thomas Edison, Al Capone, Winston Churchill and Bernard Baruch. Kilgallen was married to Mae Ahern of Denver in 1912. Their daughter, Dorothy Kilgallen, was also a reporter for the "New York Journal American" before her death in 1965.

Collection documents the journalistic career of James L. Kilgallen, from 1919-1978. Collection consists mainly of newspaper clippings and transcripts of articles by Kilgallen from 1926-1973. Also included are photographs of Kilgallen and the people he interviewed from 1919-1978 and press passes for 1943-1978.

Leet, John E., 1847-1922.
Diaries 1888-1923.
2.25 cubic ft. (5 boxes)
Acc. #06805

John Edward Leet was a pioneer real estate businessman and journalist in Denver, Colorado. He was from New Orleans and came to Denver in 1879. Leet's father, Daniel, had founded Leetsdale, Pennsylvania, but had joined his son's family in Denver and entered into business with John. John was engaged in various investments and real estate ventures in Colorado and surrounding states. He also wrote columns for various newspapers and owned a cattle ranch (Leetsisle Ranch) near Douglas, Wyoming. His businesses were devastated following the Panic of 1893, and did not recover until after the Panic of 1907. John married Modeste Caillier in 1871, and they had three children, Emma Downing, Laura Roller, and Edmond. Edmond and his wife Dorothy lived in Wyoming and operated the Leetsisle Ranch.

The collection consists of John Leet's business diaries from 1888-1889, 1893-1897, 1899-1920. He recorded expenditures and receipts, business and personal memoranda and noted his and his family's daily activities. He also commented on the local and national economy and politics. There is information on Leet's trips to Douglas, Wyoming, and numerous other places, and on his attempts in 1901 to establish a sugar beet plant in Denver. Diary entries are daily and substantive, and beginning in 1904 the diaries are indexed by names and subjects. The collection also includes an incomplete 1923 diary of Dorothy Leet and a Leet family genealogical chart.

United States in the 1920s on stage and in silent movies. Because of Renaldo's own uncertainty surrounding the facts of his birth and nationality, he became involved in a trial in 1931 relating to his legal status and citizenship. He was later charged with making false statements on his passport and served eighteen months in prison. Renaldo was formally pardoned by President Roosevelt and released in 1936. Renaldo managed to regain status as an actor and was cast in several films including "For Whom the Bell Tolls" in 1941. In 1946 he was offered the film role of the "Cisco Kid" and went on to play the role on radio and television.

Collection contains some personal materials but mainly materials relating to Renaldo's acting and his portrayal of the "Cisco Kid" and "Cisco Kid" memorabilia. There is fan mail, personal and general correspondence with some relating to the Screen Writers' and Screen Actors Guilds. There are some legal papers relating to his first divorce and his citizenship. Screenplays for motion pictures including "For Whom the Bell Tolls" are included along with "Cisco Kid" scripts for radio and television. There is a large amount of "Cisco Kid" publicity materials including promotional kits, posters, memorabilia, and Renaldo personal appearances files containing correspondence, photographs, contracts and newspaper clippings. There are numerous artifacts including costumes and a handcrafted saddle, bridle and breast collar. Also included is a 16mm color film (along with film negative), "Mission to America," a documentary on California Spanish missions Renaldo made in 1941.

2.7 cubic ft. (4 boxes) + artifacts.

Acc. #06189

Rott was born in Wisconsin in 1902 and worked for several newspapers in Wisconsin before becoming acquainted with Alf Landon in 1932. Landon had just been elected governor of Kansas and Rott served as Landon's personal secretary from 1932 to 1939 and also worked as one of Landon's speechwriters during his 1936 presidential campaign. From 1940 to 1946 Rott worked as the editor of the Hastings, Nebraska, "Tribune" and editor and general manager of the Winfield, Kansas, and "Courier". Both papers were owned by Fred A. Seaton of Hastings, Nebraska, who would later become one of Nebraska's U.S. Senators, a personal secretary for President Eisenhower and Secretary of the Interior. Seaton purchased the Sheridan, Wyoming, "Press" in 1946, and Rott became its editor and publisher, a position he held until his death in January 1969. Rott also served a staggered term on the Wyoming State Highway Commission during the 1950s.

The collection contains materials relating to Rott's career in politics and journalism from 1919 to 1971. The collection includes extensive correspondence, between Rott and Fred Seaton as well as with Wyoming politicians regarding political issues and Rott's editorials; between Rott and Alf Landon from 1935 to 1968, mostly regarding political issues in Kansas, Wyoming and the nation; and between Rott's wife Dorothy and Theo Cobb Landon and Josephine Cobb, Alf Landon's second wife and mother-in-law respectively, from 1942-1971. The collection also includes a bound copy of Landon's presidential campaign speeches; a notebook containing Landon's presidential platform; copies of Landon's speeches; materials relating to Rott's membership with numerous livestock, civic and professional organizations, including minutes, speeches and reports concerning the implementation of the U.S. Interstate System in Wyoming, especially with regards to the location of what is now Interstate 90 between Gillette and Buffalo, Wyoming for the Wyoming State Highway Commission. The collection
