Graduate Certificate Program for Teachers of American Indian Children

In this graduate program the University of Wyoming certifies that those who complete its five specialized courses possess the attitudes, knowledge, and competence necessary to effectively teach American Indian Children. Upon completion, students will receive official recognition of their achievement on their University of Wyoming transcripts and an official certificate.

The Graduate Certificate is one of two forms of post-baccalaureate, non-degree programs offered by the University of Wyoming. The second form is the Wyoming Teacher Endorsement, which leads to recognition, by the Professional Teaching Standards Board, of State teacher licensing standards met in the areas of Early Childhood Education, Literacy Education, and English as a Second Language.

Although University of Wyoming endorsement and certificate programs are not degree programs, the courses from these programs may be used to meet requirements of degrees outside the contexts of the certificates. With the consent of their faculty committees, students who have been formally admitted to graduate degree programs, may count endorsement and certificate program courses toward the requirements of their degrees.

Required Program Courses:
