In response to this situation, over 300 churches and Synagogues across the United States, 19 cities, 20 universities, and one state have elected to provide sanctuary to refugees. The United States has traditionally served as a haven for all refugees of religious, political or other persecution, and much of our historical and moral tradition both as a community and as a nation is rooted in the provision of sanctuary to persecuted peoples. The ASUG wishes to clarify its desire not to expand university or student resources beyond the requirements of Federal Law by voluntarily assisting investigation of allegations of illegal immigration law violations or in gathering or disseminating information on the citizenship status of those residing within the bounds of the University. Virtually all the residents of the U.S. are immigrants or refugees, or descendants of immigrants or refugees.
