

Matt Haigler, a UW alum, is filling 5 entry-level, full-time, positions with Halliburton in Houston, TX.

Matt is a Logistics Manager for Halliburton and is re-structuring his logistics team. If you apply and are selected, you will work with him in the logistics area doing a variety of things to assist with the whole process of planning, coordinating, and executing trucking deliveries as part of the supply chain process for fracking crews; including monitoring the flow of materials being delivered. Candidates need strong problem solving and customer service skills, and possess a good work ethic. These are not traditional, engineering-specific positions so any major who is motivated and interested can apply. This is a great way to get your feet in the door with Halliburton: other career paths people have moved onto include continuing with supply chain, management, materials manager, supervisor, procurement, and even field engineers. This is a great opportunity to gain hands-on experience and knowledge. The salary is expected to be between $60,000-$70,000/yr. Matt wants to get these positions filled by the end of December so if interested, apply AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. Applicants need to be U.S. Citizen or Permanent Resident.

To Apply: email Matt your resume as an attachment; you don't need a cover letter, just indicate in the email that you are interested in being considered for the open positions that Ann Jones from the CEAS career services office, informed you of. Matt's email address is Matt.Haigler@halliburton.com