Under-Represented Domestic Minority Graduate Assistantships

The Department of Chemistry at the University of Wyoming is excited to announce two new GA positions for the fall semester of 2018. These positions are available exclusively to incoming graduate students from Under-Represented Domestic Minorities (URDMs) who are seeking for doctoral or master’s degree in Chemistry. URDM students are defined as American born or naturalized (domestic) students from an under-represented minority, including students of African American, Hispanic/Latino, American Indian, Alaskan native, Native Hawaiian/Pacific Islander, or Asian descent. To receive full consideration for one of these positions, please contact the program coordinator via email (chemistry@uwyo.edu). Qualifying applications will be reviewed as received and the positions will remain open until suitable candidates are identified.

“The University of Wyoming offers Graduate Assistantships that are intended to increase access and opportunities to graduate education for U.S. students from under-represented/under-served populations and to increase student diversity in our graduate degree programs on a competitive basis. The University of Wyoming is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer and institution and does not discriminate on the basis of race, gender, religion, color, national origin, disability, age, protected veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity, genetic information, creed, ancestry, political belief, or any other applicable protected category or participation in any protected activity in any aspect of employment or services. For more information see www.uwyo.edu/diversity/fairness.”