UW Athletics
2019-20 Academic Year
Athletic Department Mission Statement
“The University of Wyoming Department of Intercollegiate Athletics is committed to the development of tomorrow's leaders by creating an environment that promotes personal growth, academic and athletic excellence in a progressive, inclusive, and transparent manner. The Department of Intercollegiate Athletics will support the overall University of Wyoming mission, provide an outstanding fan experience, encourage community engagement, and serve as a source of pride for alumni, supporters, and the state of Wyoming.

Athletics - Marketing Department Mission Statement
“The mission of Wyoming Athletics Marketing is to serve as the primary awareness & advertising arm of the department with the goal of driving attendance at games through development of engaging content across all traditional and new media platforms. Marketing is also responsible for motivating loyal and boisterous home crowds through an appealing fan experience and connecting student-athletes and programs to fans through community engagement opportunities for the University of Wyoming.”

Program Overview
Internship positions within the UW Athletics Department offer a unique opportunity for students to work within college sports as well as promote Wyoming Athletics and the broader University of Wyoming. These positions are a great learning experience and will provide an opportunity to experience the inner workings of various roles marketing plays in an athletic department.

Internships are focused on the sporting events in and around the UW campus. These positions provide students with an invaluable real-life experience working with the various staff and administrators that will benefit the pursuit of a career in any field.

Internships are offered in 3 specific areas: marketing, social media and graphic design. Opportunities for advancement (such as sport “leads”, in-office projects as well as potential future part-time and full-time positions) are available to those who gain experience and show work ethic beyond the standard internship responsibilities.

Experiences
Dependent upon the specified internship, experience can be gained in the areas of event management, special events, sport event preparation, game entertainment, producing sport specific game scripts, promotions, project administration, social media content generation, branding, social media planning, graphic design and more. Marketing department interns in many ways present the “face” of the athletic department at events and interact with the community and fan base on a consistent basis.

Internship Length
Internships run from August to May of each year, coinciding with the school year. Applying interns are required to commit to the entire school year (with some exceptions for winter graduates). Applications are available in late March/early April for the following school year. Interns may be required to start in mid-to-late August to coincide and prepare for the fall sports season.
Internship Requirements

All interns must be enrolled at UW for the time in which they are on staff. Students entering their freshman and/or sophomore year or looking to work within athletics for an extended period of time are highly encouraged to apply.

Compensation

Compensation is offered in three potential ways.

1. Credit arranged through the University. All paperwork is the responsibility of the intern and any requirements of athletic staff must be communicated well in advance of the due date.
2. Experience. Nothing can substitute for real-world experience when applying for a full-time job, especially in the sports industry.
3. Each year a returning Marketing intern will be named the Rochlitz Marketing Assistant. Along with additional responsibilities this individual will also receive scholarship. This funding is contingent each year upon budget realities.

NOTE: Interns not earning credit are considered volunteer, but are expected to perform at the exact same levels as those earning credit.

Expectations

Time Commitment

- Interns may work as little as 2 hours one week and more than 20 hours the next. Hours are completely dependent upon athletic schedule.
- If hired as an intern, students are expected to complete office hours when needed by the department. Typically this is 2-4 hours a week and is scheduled around class hours and other legitimate obligations.
- Interns are required to attend a weekly or bi-weekly staff meeting to organize and prepare for the week’s events.
- In addition, interns are assigned athletic events throughout the year. Many of these events take place in the evenings during the week and consistently on weekends (day & night).
- Any time-off you may need must be submitted prior to assignment of sport responsibilities. Once the schedule is set, interns are required to work with each other to swap shifts when the need arises.
- Being a member of the Wyoming Athletics Marketing staff will require you to work during some holiday breaks. Our interns play a crucial role in the execution of our events, and we must have enough staff on hand to meet our game management needs. You are expected to wait until we have scheduled staff for the events occurring over the break before you make travel plans. We will try our best to equally divide out games over thanksgiving, winter and spring breaks among all interns. Everyone will have the opportunity to go home or travel, but usually not for the entire break.
Promptness
Punctuality is critical, as the efficiency of event preparation and ultimately the success of our events depends on each person being on time and performing their assigned tasks. Routine tardiness cannot and will not be accepted. If you are running late, you must notify the specific supervisor for that event, preferably by phone call or text. There are few acceptable excuses for tardiness or absence, but there is no excuse for not notifying us. If you are ill, do not wait until the last minute to notify us that you are unable to attend an event, meeting, or office hours.

Open Door Policy
Each intern is a vital part of the UW Athletics team. UW Athletics, and the Marketing department especially, value the time and efforts of student interns. This experience should help further your career within the sports world, or offer experiences applicable to future careers outside athletics, and provide a well-rounded understanding of a working university athletic department.

Our departments have an open door policy. If at any time a concern arises, interns are encouraged to bring it to the supervisor’s attention immediately.

Standards of Conduct
Interns are expected to act in a professional manner at all times while representing the Athletics Department. You are a direct reflection of the University of Wyoming and Wyoming Athletics and as such you should act in a manner to represent both professionally. This includes dressing, acting, and talking in a professional manner. Personal business (cell phone calls, emails and in person) should be kept to a minimum while working. Absolutely no disparaging remarks towards any Wyoming Athletic teams or affiliated programs or activities will be tolerated, including personal social media. Finally, the use of alcohol and illegal drugs is prohibited while working. Arriving to work hung-over is also prohibited and is cause for dismissal.

Dress Code
Office hours - Please dress appropriately for work conditions. No sweats, pajamas, workout clothes, hats, etc. If you think it might be inappropriate, it probably is, don’t wear it! Game attire varies for each sport, and for each department. This will be discussed at our intern orientation.

Confidentiality
As an intern, students may be exposed to areas of athletics not open to the public. (athlete injury, athlete personal information, promotional information, etc.) Though not a full time employee, interns are still expected to follow confidentiality policies set by federal laws like HIPAA and FERPA as well as department policy. These will be explained further upon hire. Violation or sharing of confidential information will lead to immediate dismissal.

Event Etiquette
Interns will be assigned to work a number of specific and different events. We are ALL responsible for the success of these events. Interns should always be courteous and friendly to the public, game crew, student-athletes, coaches, administrators and other athletics/Landmark staff members. Conduct of interns is often noticed by fans and administrators and reported back upon (positive and negative). Our #1 job is to create the best fan experience possible at each and every game!
Specific Internship opportunities/areas:

There are 3 specific areas you can apply within the UW Athletics Marketing Department for an internship to support our 17 intercollegiate Division I teams. You can apply (with one application) to multiple internships if your interest spans more than 1 of descriptions below. If hired, typically we only assign you to one specific internship. However, there will be opportunities to learn across each area. Please note that the majority of hours spent by marketing and social media interns are on game days, while graphic design interns spend more time in the office during the week.

Marketing Intern:
Marketing Interns develop and improve competencies in leadership, customer service, teamwork, multitasking, and time management. Responsibilities include developing and implementing the marketing efforts for each of our programs, as well as building and enhancing the game day experience for fans; influencing and cultivating student attendance for home events; direct interaction with fans; managing our youth fan club, Pistol’s Pals as well as our student based fan initiative, Wild Bunch; assisting in special events and various other tasks as assigned.

Social Media Intern:
Social Media Interns are responsible for in-game engagement and content creation for UW’s athletic teams; develop pre-game, in-game, post-game and other relevant content for social/digital use; keep up on social media trends for sports and actively seek out new ideas for content for UW Athletics social media pages; brainstorm and execute social media marketing plans; manage and report on post/page analytics. Applicants should be creative and energetic and have the ability to work both collaboratively and independently, have strict attention to detail and accuracy, bring a basic understanding of multiple sports, have a good understanding of social media platforms including Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and Snapchat, have an eagerness to learn and willing to take direction and be able to work weekends and evenings with good time management skills. Experience managing social media accounts (aside from personal pages) and experience participating in sports are preferred, but not required.

Graphic Design Intern:
Graphic Design Interns will design promotional materials for UW’s athletic teams; collaborate with marketing department to develop new ideas, templates, and promotions, while adhering to the UW Athletics Brand standards; design pregame, in-game, post-game and other graphic content for social media platforms and complete other design work as assigned. Applicants should have proficiency with Adobe Creative Suite, especially Photoshop, an ability to work collaboratively and independently, are creative and efficient, able to meet continuous and sometimes demanding deadlines with attention to detail and accuracy; and photography skills are a plus.
Future opportunities:

UW students who have completed this internship have gone on to positions in collegiate, minor league and professional sports as well as professional marketing positions and ad agencies. Employers include: UW Athletics, UW Foundation, Oregon Athletics, Stanford Athletics, Duke Athletics, Utah Athletics, MSU-Billings Athletics, Colorado Athletics, Memphis Grizzlies, Tampa Bay Rays, Tulsa Drillers, Rapid City Rush, Kroenke Sports & Entertainment, State of Wyoming Tourism, Goodby Silverstein & Partners, and Dropbox just to name a few.
