Cowboy Parents Funding

All funding for Cowboy Parents’ various activities and programs is secured through various fundraising efforts. No state dollars support Cowboy Parents.

The parents of current undergraduate students are solicited each year for support of Cowboy Parents during the Cowboy Parents Annual Giving drive.

Specifically, parents of students meeting the following criteria are contacted:

- freshman, sophomore, junior, or senior class status;
- under the age of 25;
- non-international; and
- not married.

These criteria were established the first year Cowboy Parents participated in the annual fund to address financial limitations and the concerns of the adult student population.

Since no dues are assessed for membership, parents support their organization and the benefits it provides through donations to the annual fund. We can proudly say that all dollars generated through the annual fund go to activities and programs that directly support student success at UW.

As early as is possible in the fall semester, paid student callers conduct Cowboy Parents annual phonathon. An annual fund consultant and research support that contacts with parents are better made very early in the semester, and that starting with phone calls right away is more effective.

The students making the contacts with parents during the phonathon are employed and trained by the University of Wyoming Foundation. We find that parents enjoy talking with the student callers, and often want to discuss everything from how the Cowboys are doing to how the food is in Washakie. Unfortunately, the student callers sometimes have to address angry or frustrated parents or are faced with questions that they are unable to answer about policy and procedure; therefore, professional staff is also present to deal with these types of situations. Every concern identified during the phonathon is responded to by the staff in the vice president for student affairs office.

The Foundation has expressed its commitment to contact as many constituents as possible, so after the time period designated for Cowboy Parents calls, the Development Coordinator of Annual Giving identifies a few student callers to continue the process until every parent on the list has been called at least once.

We currently send out a mail solicitation prior to the Cowboy Parents phonathon alerting parents that they will be receiving a call from a UW students seeking support of Cowboy Parents.

Annual fund donations are received and held by the University of Wyoming Foundation. As a part of the Division of Student Affairs and with a charitable and educational mission, Cowboy Parents functions under the Foundation’s 501( c )(3) tax exempt status, and dollars are held in an interest bearing account. Monies received through the annual fund can be transferred to an account held in the vice president for student affairs office for operational expenses, and the coordinator of Cowboy Parents serves as the treasurer of Cowboy Parents.
While the Cowboy Parents Council is not technically considered a “fundraising” entity and individual Council members are not asked to make “leadership” gifts, Council members are encouraged to give as generously as they are able.
