February Principle

Rule of Law
The Daniels Fund defines Rule of Law as complying with the spirit and intent of laws and regulations. Understanding the spirit and intent of laws and regulations is important because they are put in place to achieve specific social and moral goals, such as promoting fairness, protecting the rights of the individual, and ensuring public safety. Additionally, following the spirit and intent of laws is necessary for maintaining the integrity and credibility of our legal system.

February Bulletin
The Center for Principle-Based Leadership and Ethics is collaborating with the Bethany Center for Ethics, which started a new chapter in Wyoming (WyE) as an affiliate of Vue’s Ethics Leadership Institute. This ambitious project will involve leadership classes involved with local nonprofit organizations to help them navigate the BBB’s accreditation process for charities. The students will be working in four main areas: 1) Board Governance, 2) Finance, 3) Results Reporting, and 4) Ethical Leadership. The Daniels Fund Ethics Initiative Principles, while also establishing their own personal code. RMAS is currently exploring future leadership students working with local nonprofits participating in UW’s SparkTank initiative. Business Community Initiative
The Center for Principle-Based Leadership and Ethics (PBLE) recently participated in a Manager Symposium for Rocky Mountain Ace Stores (RMAS). Owners and managers representing 30 Ace Hardware stores were introduced to the Daniels Fund Ethics Initiative Principles, while also establishing their own personal code. RMAS is currently exploring future executive education opportunities with the PBLE.

Student Spotlight
Taylor Redeman, who grew up on a ranch in Douglas, Wyoming, is a senior honor student in Petroleum Engineering. As a junior, she was elected as a club officer and became more involved with the events and meetings that impacted her greatly. Taylor says many of her closest friends are a result of this club, and she loves how dedicated Ethics Club students are to their community. In addition to serving on the club’s committee for the past two years, Taylor earned her NASBA Ethics Leadership Certification, created her own personal code of ethics, and approved her own personal code. RMAS is currently exploring future leadership students working with local nonprofits participating in UW’s SparkTank initiative.

Feburary Events

Sunday Monday Tuesday Wednesday Thursday Friday Saturday
1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25

- Monday, February 13th: Ethics Team Meeting, Laramie, WY.
- Tuesday, February 14th: Case Competition, Laramie, WY.
- Wednesday, February 15th: Ethics Team Meeting, Laramie, WY.
- Thursday, February 16th: Ethics Team Meeting, Laramie, WY.
- Friday, February 17th: Ethics Team Meeting, Laramie, WY.
- Saturday, February 18th: Ethics Team Meeting, Laramie, WY.

Program Updates

Student Learning
- The-Collaborative-Businesses-hosting-the-first-annual-Ethical-Leadership-Summit-on-February-3-3:30pm. The Summit will present four keynote speakers: Cynthia Cooper, the $3.8 billion WorldCom; Jon and Jami, the late philanthropists; Robert Lighthizer, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce; and an Ethical Leadership Panel and Reception. The Summit will also include a panel discussion on the state of ethics in business and a networking reception.

Community Involvement
- The University of Wyoming’s Center for Business and Economic Analysis (CBEA) is working with UW Ethics Club and local nonprofit organizations to determine the economic impact SparkTank has in Albany County. Since 2018, the Ethics Club has invested $40,000 in local nonprofits through its Spark Tank initiative. It is anticipated that the program will contribute an additional $10,000 to stimulate nonprofits that provide essential needs.

Outreach
- The Center for Principle-Based Leadership and Ethics (PBLE) recently participated in the Manager Symposium for Rocky Mountain Ace Stores (RMAS). Owners and managers representing 140 Ace Hardware stores were introduced to the Daniels Fund Ethics Initiative Principles, while also establishing their own personal code. RMAS is currently exploring future executive education opportunities with the PBLE.

Fellow Spotlight
Chris Haller, is the new Director of the Center for Principle-Based Leadership & Ethics (PBLE). He brings a unique skill set of project coordination, leadership, event management, and fundraising experience to the PBLE. Chris most recently served as Vice President for Crest Insurance’s Wyoming Division, and led the firm’s first branch acquisition in the state. Previously, he was the inaugural Director of the Center for Professional Selling at UW, where he launched a corporate partnership program, and multiple educational initiatives for the College of Business’s new Major and Minor in Professional Selling. Chris will provide the PBLE with his extensive experience in corporate partnership development, business development, and management, and fundraising experience to the PBLE. Chris will provide the PBLE with his extensive experience in corporate partnership development, business development, and leadership. Chris will provide the PBLE with his extensive experience in corporate partnership development, business development, and leadership.

Student Learning
- The-Collaborative-Businesses-hosting-the-first-annual-Ethical-Leadership-Summit-on-February-3-3:30pm. The Summit will present four keynote speakers: Cynthia Cooper, the $3.8 billion WorldCom; Jon and Jami, the late philanthropists; Robert Lighthizer, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce; and an Ethical Leadership Panel and Reception. The Summit will also include a panel discussion on the state of ethics in business and a networking reception.

Community Involvement
- The University of Wyoming’s Center for Business and Economic Analysis (CBEA) is working with UW Ethics Club and local nonprofit organizations to determine the economic impact SparkTank has in Albany County. Since 2018, the Ethics Club has invested $40,000 in local nonprofits through its Spark Tank initiative. It is anticipated that Spark Tank will contribute an additional $10,000 to stimulate nonprofits that provide essential needs.

Outreach
- The Center for Principle-Based Leadership and Ethics (PBLE) recently participated in the Manager Symposium for Rocky Mountain Ace Stores (RMAS). Owners and managers representing 140 Ace Hardware stores were introduced to the Daniels Fund Ethics Initiative Principles, while also establishing their own personal code. RMAS is currently exploring future executive education opportunities with the PBLE.

Fellow Spotlight
Chris Haller, is the new Director of the Center for Principle-Based Leadership & Ethics (PBLE). He brings a unique skill set of project coordination, leadership, event management, and fundraising experience to the PBLE. Chris most recently served as Vice President for Crest Insurance’s Wyoming Division, and led the firm’s first branch acquisition in the state. Previously, he was the inaugural Director of the Center for Professional Selling at UW, where he launched a corporate partnership program, and multiple educational initiatives for the College of Business’s new Major and Minor in Professional Selling. Chris will provide the PBLE with his extensive experience in corporate partnership development, business development, and leadership.

Student Spotlight
Taylor Redeman, who grew up on a ranch in Douglas, Wyoming, is a senior honor student in Petroleum Engineering. As a junior, she was elected as a club officer and became more involved with the events and meetings that impacted her greatly. Taylor says many of her closest friends are a result of this club, and she loves how dedicated Ethics Club students are to their community. In addition to serving on the club’s committee for the past two years, Taylor earned her NASBA Ethics Leadership Certification, created her own personal code of ethics, and approved her own personal code. RMAS is currently exploring future leadership students working with local nonprofits participating in UW’s SparkTank initiative.

February Events