Inaugural Issue

We hope you enjoy this first issue of GEAR UP Wyoming Matters. It will be published three times per year and focus on the GEAR UP Wyoming program and its management at the University of Wyoming and across the state.

GEAR UP, which stands for Gaining Early Awareness and Readiness for Undergraduate Programs, is funded by a federal grant with matching state funds.

The Wyoming program, called GEAR UP Wyoming, is a true educational partnership. The University of Wyoming (UW) manages the grant and partners with the seven community colleges within the state. The community colleges work directly with 7th-12th grade students who can benefit from the program.

GEAR UP Wyoming targets 2,000 income-eligible students throughout the state and encourages them to complete high school and succeed at a post secondary institution. It accomplishes this mission by offering students the tools they need to be successful.
Turning the GEAR UP Vision into the GEAR UP Reality

In 2002, a vision was formed. Fuji Adachi, the former Director of the office of Student Educational Opportunity (SEO) at the University of Wyoming, learned of a federal grant that would help under represented students realize their dreams of attending college. However, for the federal government to supply funding, the state would have to match the funds. Mr. Adachi decided working with the state’s community colleges would be a good way to administer the grant and to provide the dollar for dollar match.

Mr. Adachi presented his vision to the Wyoming Community College Presidents, the Wyoming Department of Education leadership, and the Wyoming Community College Commission; everyone agreed to participate in the partnership. The partners were asked to appoint a contact from each of the partnering institutions to serve on the grant planning and writing team.

In 2003, a meeting between the community colleges and the University provided the atmosphere to pull together the specifics of the grant proposal. Based on the number of students eligible for free or reduced lunches within the state, the team determined 2,000 students could be served through the grant by the community colleges.

On April 8, 2005, Governor Freudenthal officially designated the University of Wyoming as the lead agency to apply for and administer the state GEAR UP grant. During that same year, the grant was submitted and awarded. At a special ceremony in August 2005, the first lady of Wyoming, Nancy Freudenthal, announced the grant award in the Capitol rotunda.

The grant provides funding for six years and is now in its fourth year. It is managed from SEO in Knight Hall at the University of Wyoming with a grant management team who works with the community colleges.

Dear Mr. Sandberg:

In writing this letter, I officially designate the University of Wyoming to be the lead Wyoming agency to apply for and administer the state GEAR-UP grant.

This statewide GEAR-UP grant reflects a grand opportunity for the State of Wyoming and its education institutions. The direct services offered to low-income students and their parents, as well as the professional development and school improvement activities, will significantly increase the high school and college graduation rates of low-income students and of all students in general.

As you may know, the State of Wyoming is set to make a significant commitment itself in higher education. During the past legislative session, I signed into law the commitment to establish an endowment that will ultimately total $400 million for financial aid. This is a significant investment in Wyoming’s future that will work hand-in-hand with GEAR-UP initiatives to bring about significant opportunities to low-income students. As you are well aware, money for educational access should go hand in hand with providing the knowledge, skills, and support so essential to success in increasing access. I believe that GEAR-UP is an important component of providing these skills and support.

I support the grant and its services and stand ready to aid in implementing the initiatives associated with its award. Specifically, I believe that we must facilitate the integration of GEAR-UP initiatives into other state-sponsored initiatives, such as the Hathaway Scholarship plans and the Children and Families Initiative. I would also appreciate attending GEAR-UP conferences and awards banquets, as you feel appropriate. Finally, my staff will continue to work with you to identify additional opportunities to support your plans for GEAR-UP and its students.

Thank you for your work on this important project and please do not hesitate to contact my office for further assistance.

Best regards,

Dave Freudenthal
Governor

Letter from the Governor of Wyoming designating the University of Wyoming as the lead agency to apply for and administer the state GEAR-UP grant.
GEAR UP Wyoming: Sound Structure through Partners

GEAR UP Wyoming (GUWY) has developed a powerful group of partners and a sound structure to systemically affect Wyoming’s entire educational system. A local saying is that Wyoming, while large geographically, is really just a small town with long streets. GUWY takes advantage of our “smallness” to gather all of the relevant stakeholders together to bring about change so that Wyoming's children experience educational success.

GUWY partners include every institution of higher education in the state — the University of Wyoming and the seven community colleges. Other partners include the Governor's office, the Wyoming Department of Education and the Wyoming Community College Commission.

Low-income students in Wyoming perform significantly lower academically than non-low-income students. They continue on to college at rates that are among the lowest in the country. Across the board, low-income 8th and 11th graders fail to meet Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP) in math, reading, and writing. Fortunately, the state is addressing these issues in order to ensure that income is no longer a significant barrier to obtaining a college degree.

GEAR UP works to solve these problems by targeting students, parents, teachers, administrators, and schools. Curriculum and early academic planning are central to the success of students, as well as teacher professional development and school reform. Students and their families gain key knowledge and receive support that targets the causes for low academic performance and college-going rates.

Beyond the individual services, long-term systemic change is sought. Teachers, schools, and educational processes are impacted through comprehensive professional development. Change is not dictated from the outside, but led from those within through extensive partnership building. GEAR UP funding and its six years of intensive services will leave Wyoming in a much better place for tomorrow’s students.
