UW REGULATION 7-610

Regulations of the Summer School

1. PURPOSE.

The Summer School is authorized to organize and supervise the resident instructional programs offered between the end of the spring semester and the beginning of the ensuing fall semester. Resident instruction includes the main campus of the University, its authorized external degree programs, and the various field schools organized by the University's academic departments in the summer.

2. ORGANIZATION.

The Summer School shall be under the administrative responsibility of the Dean of the The Outreach School, who, in consultation with the Vice President for Academic Affairs shall be responsible for enforcing University regulations with respect to the Summer School.

3. DUTIES OF THE DEAN.

In discharging his duties, the Dean or his designee shall:

(a) Plan and coordinate the courses and programs to be offered, in consultation with the department or division heads, academic deans, and the Vice President for Academic Affairs.

(b) Recommend to the Vice President for Academic Affairs a budget, which shall include funds for instructional services in the summer and for operation of the Summer School Office.

(c) Recommend annually to the Vice President for Academic Affairs, upon the recommendation of the department or division heads and cognate deans, the appointment of the faculty of the Summer School.

(d) Appoint annually persons to perform duties as student assistants upon the recommendation of the department or division heads and appropriate deans.

(e) Recommend a summer academic calendar to the Vice President for Academic Affairs.

(f) Announce and promote courses offered by the Summer School and supervise publication of those numbers of the University Bulletin which relate specifically to the Summer School.
(g) Make or initiate such studies as seem pertinent to decisions which affect operation of the Summer School.
