Three officers and three directors of the IMA at UW attended the 12th Annual Student Leadership Conference in Cincinnati, OH last week. The Conference kicked off on Thursday with a Networking reception and Tour of the Newport Aquarium just over the river in Newport, Kentucky. The team from UW were the winners of the Aquarium scavenger hunt.

Friday and Saturday were spent in educational sessions. The topics included corporate social responsibility, XBRL, career decisions, getting your first job, CMA preparation, and leadership. The speakers from industry brought a powerful perspective on everything from the challenges of being socially responsible to the factors that affect hiring decisions in today’s environment.

UW students met IMA student members from across the nation, as well as global officers of the IMA at the networking events. This conference is an exciting opportunity offered to IMA members at the University of Wyoming.

IMA members held a bean bag toss and handed out candy at the University of Wyoming’s annual SafeTreat event. This was organized by Director of Community Service, Rachel Cluny. The IMA participated in this event as one of its many community service projects. The event is an important way to provide safe Halloween activities to the community.
