The IMA Winds of Change on October 8 was a success for both professionals and students. Accounting professionals from around the country were able to attend, including Sandra Richtermeyer, IMA Global Chair. Sandra spoke twice during the day about Leadership in a Volunteer Organization and Changes in the IMA. Other speakers were Gerald Anderson from Enceana, Dustin Kukuchka from Dyno Nobel Inc, Cynthia Friedt from Admire Beverage Corporation, and Kenneth Dugas, partner in McGee, Hearne and Paiz LLP.

The conference was such a great success that the chapter is considering holding another conference in the Fall of 2011. The board is interested in hearing suggestions from all who attended about how to improve next year's conference.

A lunch was held in the Union Ballroom, catered by the Library Restaurant, which gave students a chance to talk one-on-one with the speakers and other conference attendees. A reception was held afterward for Sandra Richtermeyer, with coffee and dessert from Turtle Rock. The chapter would also like to thank Transpark for selling parking passes to attendees.

The next major undertaking for the IMA board will be applying for the IMA gold award and the Clark Johnson award. This award is very prestigious, and is designed to recognize outstanding and innovative student chapters. The Winds of Change conference was one way to show how hard our members work, and strive to create a vision for the chapter's future.

The board is really looking forward to all IMA student members working together towards this goal.

Don't forget to attend the November 1 meeting with Becky Adair to learn about "Making Meetings Work." Also, make time before finals week for the Finals Destressor on November 30.
