

Book X.
Title XLIII.

In what manner civic burdens are assigned.
(Quemadmodum civilia munera indicuntur.)

Headnote.

Read C. 10.41 in connection with laws of this title.

10.43.1. Emperors Carus, Carinus and Numerian to Felicianus.

Since you say that you have been appointed as curator to provide haulage on highways (angarias) and that you have appealed, the president of the province, if he shall learn that you belong to another curia, will not permit you to be called to perform liturgies in another corporation, because you must bear the burdens of your home city, to which you say you belong.<sup>1</sup>

10.43.2. Emperors Diocletian and Maximian to Dionysius.

It is not right that those who have filled the greater honors should be called on to fill the lesser ones.

10.43.3. The same Emperors to Eutybianus.

Since you assert that you have performed all the liturgies, then if there are others who may perform the civic functions, the president of the province will not permit that you be called again to the performance of the same liturgies.<sup>2</sup>

10.43.4. The same Emperors and the Caesars to Reginus.

That you should be burdened with civic functions (liturgies) entailing an excessive amount of expense, while others are relieved therefrom, will not be permitted by the president of the province who, mindful of the law and regulations, will preserve equality as to the order of performance (of these functions).

---

<sup>1</sup> [Blume] As to appeals in such cases, see C. 10.32.2 and note.

<sup>2</sup> [Blume] Similar in effect is C. 10.32.52.