

Book VI.
Title V.

If an alienation has been made in fraud of a patron.
(Si in fraudem patroni alienatio facta est.)

Dig. 38.5; Bas. 6.49.14-15.

6.5.1. Emperors Diocletian and Maximian and the Caesars to Claudius.

If a freedman alienates anything in fraud of a patron, it is proper that in so far as the legal portion of the latter was diminished, the alienation may be annulled.

Subscribed at Sirmium October 17 (294).

6.5.2. The same Emperors and the Caesars to Julia.

When a freedman has died, the patron who inherits from the intestate, may, by an action under the law Calvisiana, recover the property fraudulently alienated. 1. But since you allege that the patron, after the death of his freedman, ratified the gift of a farm made by the freedman, the heirs of the manumitter cannot invalidate the latter's act.

Subscribed at Sirmium December 25 (294).