Cost of the Trips
There are two components of the total cost of the trip:

▶ $1,000 Brigade Fee
Payable to the non-governmental organization Shoulder to Shoulder.org. This fee covers all in-country expenses including food, lodging, transportation, interpreters, evacuation insurance, and helps pay for medical supplies and medications.

▶ $700–$900 Airfare

Improving Healthcare in Honduras

We travel two to three times each year to a rural Honduran town called Agua Salada. There, we provide quality healthcare. Through community surveys and a close relationship with the town leadership, we have identified barriers to healthcare and we help the community overcome these barriers by providing:

- Medications
- Healthcare and education
- Nutritional support
- Home visits

We are in the early stages of building a clinic in Agua Salada. This will create a sustainable healthcare program that will offer on-going access to healthcare for the community and great clinical and research opportunities for our UW students.

How Can I Get Involved—and Get Credit for It?

A 3-credit senior-level course is offered in the fall. Contact Penelope Caldwell. Or your department may have a role to play in helping Agua Salada. Work with your professor to develop a project to be conducted during your trip.

All UW departments are welcome.

Participating UW departments:

- Pharmacy
- Medicine
- Nursing
- Engineering
- Psychology
- International Studies
- Spanish
- Social Work

Frequently Asked Questions:

Q: I don’t have any medical skills—is there still a role for me?

A: Yes! The project is about health, which includes education, anthropology, sociology, community development, computers, engineering, geology, and other areas—anyone who is willing to help!

Q: Do I have to know Spanish?

A: No. Sure, it helps, but Shoulder to Shoulder arranges for Honduran interpreters who will spend the entire time with us.

Q: What are the living conditions like?

A: Plan on camping for two weeks. We’ll have a mattress on the floor and a roof over our heads but will probably be eating our meals outside.
