The AADE, IADC and SPE – Who We Are
We are recognized student organizations at the University of Wyoming (UW), known as the AADE, IADC and SPE, respectively. Under our parent organizations of the same names, we operate independently as student chapters on the UW campus. We each have a mission is to connect students with industry and promote petroleum engineering as a career field through a series of planned events throughout the academic year. These events include various guest speaker presentations, community volunteering, and industry networking events. By establishing connections within the industry while still in school, students at UW have additional learning opportunities and exposure to potential career paths in the oil and gas industry and future employers.

Sponsorship Opportunity – Supporting Students
The annual Pumpjack PETE golf tournament is our joint effort premier fundraising event each academic year. Through your generous support, the money raised allows petroleum engineering students to attend national conferences, parent chapter meetings, host guest speakers who present technical seminars, as well as helping to pay for student certifications and various social events throughout the year. In partnering with us for this event, your company will have the opportunity to network with students at all stages of education, as well as other industry representatives in a fun and relaxed atmosphere. In addition, your sponsorship establishes your company as a potential presenter at future student/industry events on campus and increases the awareness of your company as a potential employer for the next generation of petroleum engineers.
