

School of Pharmacy

Scholarship Profile

Danielle Weiss
Class of 2018
Cheyenne, WY

Student Bio

Danielle grew up attending UW sporting events and always knew she would like to attend UW. She chose Pharmacy because she had an interest in the medical field. Science and math were her favorite subjects in high school and she wanted a career where she could make a difference in people's lives.

Entering her final year of the Pharmacy program, she is interested in the anticoagulation and infectious disease rotations. She says "anticoagulation can be one of the more confusing medication regimens for patients, so anything I can do to help them is my priority."

Danielle has made many good friends in the School of Pharmacy and hopes to keep in contact with them in the future. After graduation, she plans to work in a community pharmacy, similar to the one where she is currently employed. She wants to build relationships with her patients and make a meaningful impact in their lives.

Danielle is very proud of attaining President's Honor Roll and the Dean's list several times while working part time. She says "honestly my parents are the number one thing that got me to be where I am in school. They have given me endless support and without them I would not have the study or work ethic I have today. I was told to always do my best and have fun at it."
