Thank you for your interest in Senator Enzi's internship program.

An internship in Washington, D.C. provides students with practical and educational opportunities to participate in the daily operation of a Senate office and observe how the legislative process works first hand.

Why do an internship?

- Obtain valuable experience in the workplace at the political center of the world.
- Seven past interns for Senator Enzi now hold full-time staff positions in his D.C. office.
- Experience the dynamic atmosphere of our nation's capital while serving the state of Wyoming.
- Establish professional contacts and lasting friendships on Capitol Hill. Past interns have met with Vice President Cheney, First Lady Laura Bush and many other key figures of U.S. government.

The Interns

Several internships are available during each session: spring, summer and fall.

Interns are an integral part of the inner workings of Senator Enzi's office. They meet with visiting constituents; give tours of the three Senate buildings and the United States Capitol, in addition to writing memos, doing research and attending various briefings. Interns also have the opportunity to attend floor proceedings, committee hearings and lectures given by government leaders.

Interns interact closely with Sen. Enzi. Opportunities to take classes for improved writing and advanced software skills are available.

Senate interns have an opportunity to work in a life-changing political atmosphere. Many who intern on Capitol Hill return upon graduation to establish careers in the nation's capital.

Eligibility

Priority is given to students from Wyoming or students studying at an institution in Wyoming, who have achieved sophomore status at an accredited school.

Students majoring in all areas are encouraged to apply. Past interns have majored in areas ranging from political science, to journalism, agriculture and economics.

Housing and Stipend

All interns are awarded a $1,600 monthly stipend in order to defray the costs of living in Washington, D.C.

Housing is not provided, but Senator Enzi's office will supply a list of available intern housing options.

Senator Enzi's office is dedicated to providing interns with a valuable and memorable semester of working and learning.

Credit

Students in the past have received 3-15 college credits during their internship. Accreditation varies from institute-to-institute, so it is advised to arrange this with the school as early as possible.

Terms

Senator Enzi offers three internship programs throughout the year.

Terms include:

Spring      January-May
Summer     May-August
Fall         September-December

Applications for this summer are due March 14th, 2008.

From Past Interns

“My internship showed me a combination of politics and media that I wasn't aware of before coming to D.C. It helped me realize that this is the job for me. It is the perfect combination of writing, speaking and government.” - Current Enzi Press Secretary, Elly Pickett, summer press intern 2002

“Being an intern for the HELP Committee gave me a front row seat to policy making at the highest level.” – Current Legislative Assistant Travis Jordan, summer policy intern 2005.
