Wyoming residents have the opportunity to certify their Wyoming residency via the WICHE PSEP, WWAMI, or WYDENT programs. All three programs require Wyoming-residency certification by October 15 of the year prior to the anticipated professional school start date. All three programs require a contract with a commitment to return to the state of Wyoming for 3 years of professional practice upon completion of their professional training or to repay the funds expended by the state of Wyoming for their education, plus interest (veterinary medicine does not require a contract or payback).

If you are interested in becoming eligible to receive funds through one of these access programs, two steps are required:
1. Ensure that your residency is certified no later than October 15 of the year prior to your anticipated start date in professional school. This is your eligibility to participate in the program.
2. Apply for admission to any school(s) within the WICHE PSEP or WWAMI/WYDENT network through each profession’s required application process. Schools make ALL admissions decisions.

While these two steps are completed in the same timeframe, they are not linked. You can complete them in any order, but do keep each specific deadline in mind.

CERTIFY YOUR WYOMING RESIDENCY EARLY!
Residency Certification Applications are available online beginning on June 1 of each year through a link at the bottom of this page: http://www.uwyo.edu/certwy

We recommend that you establish and maintain a personal and professionally-named e-mail account (not your uwyo e-mail, since you may graduate around the time of application) for this and all of your applications. List all of the professional schools to which you are applying and certoff@uwyo.edu as safe senders. Be sure to check your junk mail or spam files regularly.

WICHE
WICHE is a consortium of fifteen western states created to provide educational opportunities for students in the Western United States. It administers three different student exchange programs.

The Professional Student Exchange Program (PSEP) allows certified Wyoming residents to enroll in participating out-of-state professional programs in dentistry, medicine (allopathic, osteopathic, and pediatric), occupational and physical therapy, optometry, physician’s assistant study, or veterinary medicine for Wyoming residents. Wyoming applicants or their spouses must be residents for one year immediately prior to matriculation to professional school (Residents of other WICHE states may be able to participate in PSEP via their home state. Contact your specific certification office for information.) If admitted and offered financial support (support is competitive, and not everyone will receive it), students pay reduced tuition based on the costs at the attending institution. The home state may pay a support fee to the admitting school for educational services. The length of the support varies according to the professional program. Information is available at http://www.wiche.edu/psep.

Additional WICHE programs include the Western Undergraduate Exchange (WUE) reduced undergraduate tuition, see [http://www.wiche.edu/wue] and the Western Regional Graduate Program (WRGP) reduced tuition for distinctive/health-related graduate programs, including some athletic training and public health programs, see [http://www.wiche.edu/wrgp].

Revised 10/22/2020
WWAMI

The University of Wyoming participates in this regional medical education program with the University of Washington School of Medicine. The program annually reserves seats for up to twenty qualified Wyoming residents. Participants complete the first two years of medical school at the University of Wyoming in Laramie. The third and fourth years are then spent in clinical sites throughout the WWAMI (Washington, Wyoming, Alaska, Montana, and Idaho) region. Applicants or their parents must be legal residents for five continuous years immediately prior to attending medical school. Participants make a contract payment to the University of Wyoming for the four years of medical school, and the state of Wyoming pays the educational costs to the University of Washington for each student.

WWAMI is the primary means of access for allopathic medical education in Wyoming. Applicants are encouraged to apply to the WWAMI program to study allopathic medicine and to the WICHE PSEP program for both allopathic and osteopathic medicine.

WYDENT

This is a dental education contract program for certified Wyoming residents with the University of Nebraska College of Dentistry (Lincoln, NE) and Creighton University School of Dentistry (Omaha, NE). Each school reserves seats for up to four qualified Wyoming residents. Applicants or their parents must be legal residents for five continuous years immediately prior to attending dental school. Participants make a contract payment to the University of Wyoming for the four years of dental school, and the state of Wyoming pays the educational costs to the appropriate dental school for each student.
