The Wyoming Women's Leap Into Leadership will be held in Cody and Laramie on February 7th and 9th, respectively. The event is designed to prepare women for leadership roles and features a lunchtime panel about “Why Women Matter.”

Trainer Katie Groke Ellis is the White House Project Rocky Mountain Regional Director and will facilitate the workshops. She has a Masters degree in Public Administration and has worked with the NCAA, Choice USA, Springboard Enterprises and Planned Parenthood of the Rocky Mountains. Katie has extensive experience in leadership development and has previously worked as the program director at the University of Colorado Boulder Center for Women of Color Research.

The workshop will include opportunities for networking, skills development, and stories about entrance into leadership roles and how their unique input has made a difference. Participants will end the day with a better understanding of how they can lead in their own lives and around the world. When women leaders bring their voices, everyone benefits.

Eligible for the workshop are undergraduate and graduate students, staff, faculty, and community members. You do not have to be a member of the Wyoming Women's Legislative Caucus to participate. Attendance is limited, so be sure to register.

To sign up for the workshops, visit the event page on the Wyoming Women's Legislative Caucus website or contact Scott Seville, Ph.D., Wyoming INBRE Program Coordinator, at 307-766-5449 or sseville@uwyo.edu.

In addition to the workshops, a call for volunteers is open for the Wyoming Women’s Legislative Caucus. The caucus is looking for volunteers for events and committees. If you are interested in volunteering, please contact Scott Seville at 307-766-5449 or sseville@uwyo.edu.

Other opportunities for involvement include the Wyoming Women’s Legislative Caucus, the Wyoming INBRE Program, and the McNair Scholars Program. The Wyoming Women’s Legislative Caucus is a group of women who work together to promote women’s leadership and empowerment in the state of Wyoming. The Wyoming INBRE Program is a resource center for undergraduate students interested in biomedical research. The McNair Scholars Program prepares undergraduate students from groups traditionally underrepresented in graduate education for success in doctoral degree programs.

The Wyoming Women’s Legislative Caucus is always looking for new members. If you are interested in joining, please contact Scott Seville, Ph.D., Wyoming INBRE Program Coordinator, at 307-766-5449 or sseville@uwyo.edu.

The next meeting for the Queer Resource Council is February 23rd from 3 pm to 4 pm in the Wyoming Union. The meeting will include a discussion of the Queer Resource Council’s mission and goals for the year. The meeting will also include a potluck dinner and an opportunity for members to share ideas and concerns.

The Queer Resource Council is a group of students, staff, and faculty who work to support and advocate for the LGBTQ community. The council seeks to create a safe and welcoming environment for all students, and to provide resources and support for those who identify as LGBTQ.

If you are interested in joining the Queer Resource Council, please contact Kevin Keating, Queer Resource Council President, at 307-766-5449 or keatingk@uwyo.edu.

The Wyoming Women’s Legislative Caucus is hosting a series of events in the spring semester. The events include the Queer Resource Council meeting on February 23rd, the Wyoming Women’s Legislative Caucus meeting on February 23rd, and the Queer Resource Council meeting on April 24th.

For more information, please visit the Wyoming Women’s Legislative Caucus website or contact Scott Seville, Ph.D., Wyoming INBRE Program Coordinator, at 307-766-5449 or sseville@uwyo.edu.
