Re: SUMMER SESSION (2017) call for Innovative Course Proposals

Date: March 11, 2016

The Office of Summer Session & J-Term Courses would like to invite faculty / instructional staff submissions of proposals for Summer Session 2017 innovative course subsidies. Funding is limited and applicants are not guaranteed an award. In some instances, a partial award will be made as resources allow.

For the 2017 Summer Session, the selection committee has been charged to place emphasis on the following for consideration of submitted proposals:

1. New proposals & proposals not previously awarded a summer session innovative course grant.
2. Faculty led International travel courses
3. Field courses that take advantage of Wyoming’s unique culture, history, or geographic / geologic settings
4. Domestic travel courses that expose UW students to specific topics, issues, policies, etc. that apply to their field of study or department

Faculty Led Travel Courses (international)
The goal of this initiative is to increase the number of summer courses in international education – both on-campus and abroad. Program requirements include the following:

1) The course may be a current UW course, but not previously offered in the summer or a newly created summer session travel course. Current and previous grant recipients will be considered once new travel course proposals have been reviewed.
2) The course must last for a minimum of one week for each credit hour earned.
3) The course involves a study abroad component:
   a. The course can be partially taught in the U.S. prior to and/or after an international component is completed.
   b. Faculty members are encouraged to use the resources of the host entity in-country for additional instruction and for course, travel, and residential logistics.
   c. In creating a study abroad course, faculty members are encouraged to utilize established relationships with colleagues and institutions overseas. If you do not have connections already established, then you should turn to International Programs and colleagues in your department or college to initiate a dialogue with a partner institution where on-going relations suggest a possibility of collaboration. However, you may also consider not working with a partner institution or entity overseas, and run your course’s operations independently.

d. All courses funded through this grant must work with the International Programs Office with regards to travel budgets, logistics and emergency planning.

Wyoming area based field courses
The goal of this initiative is to generate a greater number of field courses that take advantage of the unique cultural, historic, and/or geographic/geologic setting(s) that can be found in Wyoming. The field course may be an existing UW course not previously offered in the summer or a newly developed course. Please demonstrate in the proposal how and why this course will meet students’ course needs in the summer.

Domestic Travel Courses that expose UW students to specific topics, issues, policies, etc., that apply to their field of study or discipline
The goal of this initiative is to expose UW students to and facilitate their greater understanding of specific topics, issues, policies, etc., that pertain to their area of study or to the department offering the course that would be enhanced by domestic travel to areas of the United States. Recent course examples include Urban Criminology in Chicago (Criminal Justice) and a Cultural Tour of NYC (Music).

ALL PROPOSALS SHOULD INCLUDE (maximum 2 pages):

1) Title of proposal/course and a course number (if known);
2) Name of applicant, department, college, phone number, and email;
3) Names of faculty contact and other faculty members involved;
4) Program description, goals addressed, target audience, demonstrated or estimated demand/need for course, length of course, dates/times offered and number of credits offered, as well as marketing plans for the course. A syllabus should be attached. (If this is a continuing study abroad course, provide evidence of the success and viability of the course – i.e. previous course enrollment numbers to demonstrate the popularity of the course.);
5) Comprehensive budget – Total request can range between $1,000 and $5,000. Include all program costs, as well as financial contributions other than from this RFP (outside matches of funds are viewed favorably). Budget may include requests for faculty salary (and must include calculations for employer paid benefits calculated at 45.5%), faculty travel expenses, insurance, faculty per diem, and course materials; and
6) Department head and Dean of your School/College approval via email.
7) Travel and field courses should indicate if they are applying for consideration of a single year of funding or for two years of funding. (Some awards may be approved for two years of funding as resources allow).

Please submit well-written and persuasively argued proposals in accordance with the following procedures:

1) Friday, April 22, 2016, faculty members should submit the application via email to his/her department head/chair/director, which will then prioritize the department’s applications and forward them TO THE APPROPRIATE ACADEMIC DEAN – BEFORE Friday, April 29, 2016. Please package the application, attachments, and prioritization in one *.doc or *.pdf file.

2) Each dean prioritizes the college’s applications and sends them via email to Miguel Rosales (mrosales@uwyo.edu) on or before 5:00 p.m., Friday May 6, 2016.
PLEASE NOTE: It may not be possible to fund all proposals, and in some cases the subsidy may be less than that requested. Late proposals will be considered as funds are available. The funds for approved proposals will be transferred to the appropriate department office or to the International Programs Office, which will utilize the funds for trip costs.

Study Abroad Information Sheet
Plans for a summer 2017 subsidized study abroad course should be completed with your partner institution (if applicable) during the fall 2016 and spring 2017 terms. Student recruitment should also be conducted during the spring and fall of 2016, and can continue into the spring term 2017. There are critical logistical issues to be dealt with when students go abroad. Consequently, it is crucial that faculty members proposing summer study abroad courses work directly with Sara Robinson in the Office of International Programs, to ensure that essential planning components of a faculty-led course abroad are attended to. Logistics and UW requirements for faculty-led courses can be overwhelming when a faculty member is also trying to focus on preparing the course itself. International Programs will assist with advice and coordination with appropriate UW offices on marketing, recruiting, coordinating and collecting payments, arranging travel to the host country and in-country travel, meeting passport and visa requirements, insurance requirements, housing and hotel needs, and cash advances. Early and frequent collaboration with International Programs will ensure faculty and students are able to get the most they can out of the Summer Session study abroad course.
Budget for Summer Session 2017 Innovative Course Proposals

The total request should range between $1,000 and $5,000. The budget may include requests for faculty salary (must include employee paid benefits calculated at 45.5%), faculty travel expenses, faculty per diem, and course materials.
