In response to the increasing need for financial literacy education in Wyoming, University of Wyoming Extension is offering the Master Money Manager Coach (M3C) training program in Cheyenne on August 16th and 17th, 2017. The M3C program trains community coaches to work with financially at risk participants who are typically unbanked or under-banked. Individuals and organizations in Southeast Wyoming that work with financially at risk families are being encouraged to attend so they can incorporate money management training into their existing programs. The M3C program includes training on coaching others and introduces participants to the FDIC’s Money Smart curriculum.
