Housing ranges from very rustic to modern.

The research area has great conference facilities, satellite internet, libraries, laboratories and of course housing units.

The bathrooms are mainly communal baths with individual showers.

The kitchen areas are also communal with separate refrigerator space for each research group.

Please remember it is in Grand Teton National Park; we do not allow pets or camping.

There are bears in the area so please remember to keep all food and trash inside.

The Research Station is set up to provide housing for researchers. Please bring bedding, linens and food with you. We provide bunk beds, cooking and eating utensils.

There are cooking areas with refrigerators, ranges, microwaves and preparation areas for each group.

What to bring

Bring a diversity of clothing to prepare for the weather; jackets for the cool evenings, sunscreen for the day. Our altitude is 7,000 ft, snow or chilly days can occur any month of the year.

We do offer satellite internet in the Berol Lodge if you bring your computer. We ask that you use the internet for research and communication only out of respect of other researchers who may need to upload or download data.

The Johnson Historic Lodge, with bedroom, bathroom and kitchen facilities. The screened in porch faces Jackson Lake; you can't get a better view of the Tetons.
