

UW ECHO in Autism Session Agenda

Facilitator(s):	Corey Jenkins
Collaborating Entities:	Wyoming Department of Education (WDE)
Professional Development Presenter:	Michelle Jarman, Ph.D., WIND Associate Professor
Professional Development Training Description and Objectives:	This presentation introduces disability studies approaches to autism, which focus on historical understandings, cultural representation evolving meanings of autism, and social responses. We will consider the rise of "neurodiversity," current socio-political issues important to autistic self-advocates and activists and make connections from these cultural debates to supporting students in public school contexts. 1. Introduce disability studies approaches to autism 2. Connect these approaches to practical applications in K-12 classrooms
