

UW ECHO in Early Childhood Session Agenda

Facilitator(s):	Wendy Warren
Collaborating Entities:	Wyoming Department of Education
Professional Development Presenter:	Staci Horsley
Professional Development Training Description and Objectives:	Even though human behavior is incredibly complex, it can be studied scientifically. All behavior happens for a reason. Because the causes of behavior are in the environment, all behavior is, potentially, changeable. This is an inherently optimistic view because it means that all students can learn and that there are no "unteachable" students. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Participants will be familiar with 3 steps to help in decreasing challenging behavior. 2. Participants will be familiar with how to define target behavior. 3. Participants will be familiar with how to determine the function of behavior.
