The mission of the Wyoming Network for Telehealth (WyNETTE) project is to improve access to, and quality of, health care in Wyoming through information and telecommunications technology. The project's primary objectives are (1) increase health care opportunities for the state's residents through telemedicine; (2)

increase the number, types, and skills of health professionals in the state through distance delivery of health care education; and (3) increase access to information to support both health care and the administration of care through informatics and information technology, research, and policy development.
