SEPTEMBER
• Talk to your guidance counselor or the college admissions department to determine deadlines and next steps.
• Get your applications in so you don’t miss scholarship opportunities. At UW, some scholarships, such as the Trustees Scholars Award, have deadlines as early as Dec. 1.

OCTOBER
• Fill out the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) starting Oct. 1.
• Many scholarships require good ACT scores, so you can retake the tests to improve your chances for funding.
• Scholarship applications take time and effort, and places such as FastWeb.com and MeritAid.com can help you find more opportunities.

NOVEMBER
• If you are attending UW, log into your WyoWeb account and explore. Look at things like your UW financial aid and scholarship awards.
• Many schools have fall scholarship deadlines, so do some research! UW opens scholarship applications Nov. 1.
• If you haven’t already applied, get moving. If you are eyeing UW, apply during the fall and pay your $40 nonrefundable application fee.

DECEMBER
• The Trustees Scholars application deadline is Dec. 1.
• The results of your FAFSA request will be released in mid-December.

JANUARY/FEBRUARY
• You’ve applied and been accepted, so it’s time to confirm your enrollment. This process at UW requires a $300 fee and must be completed by May 1.
• The sooner you pay your enrollment deposit and sign up for housing, the more likely you are to receive your choice of specialty housing.

MARCH
• Students should sign up for New Student Orientation to finalize the journey to the first day of classes.

APRIL
• Time to narrow down your choices and make a decision.

MAY
• The enrollment deadline at UW is May 1.
• Send your final high school transcripts and any AP/IB scores, as well as any dual enrollment transcripts.
