2025 Wyoming History Day Contest

2025 Wyoming State Contest Results

The American Heritage Center held the 2025 Wyoming State History Day Competition on Tuesday, April 29, 2025, at the University of Wyoming's Coe Library and Wyoming Union. Over 160 students from across the state participated in the 45th Wyoming History Day competition. Students conducted year-long research projects based on the National History Day theme - Rights and Responsibilities in History – then produced impressive papers, documentaries, exhibits, performances, or websites.

Several students won special awards from generous sponsors such as the Wyoming Historical Society, WyoHistory.org, the National Society of Colonial Dames of America in Wyoming, the Jim Gatchell Memorial Museum, the Wyoming Archaeological Society, the Wyoming Association of Professional Archaeologists, the Wyoming chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the American Heritage Center.

Support for the state contest is also provided by the Wyoming Historical Society, Wyoming State Parks and Cultural Resources, and National History Day.

First and second-place winners from the junior and senior divisions in each category move on to the National History Day competition at the University of Maryland in June.

University Archives

Report from the University Archivist & Historian

As the University Archivist & Historian, I am honored with the responsibility of ensuring the preservation of the university's history. I interact with departments across campus on a daily basis to make certain important documents are properly preserved and transferred to the American Heritage Center where they are organized and made available for researchers. As the university's historian, it is exciting to see what historical records are transferred to the archive and what stories can be told from the documents.

John R. Waggener

In addition to working with units across campus, as the university archivist I also interact with retired faculty to preserve their research, as well as members of public, including alumni, who wish to donate UW-related materials, including memorabilia, letter sweaters, photographs, yearbooks, and scrapbooks they cherished from their time at the university. Finally, I also interact with UW-related organizations to preserve their organizational records.

During the fiscal year, the AHC received records from a wide array of units. The list is long but a few include the Board of Trustees, the office of Academic Affairs, Office of General Counsel and Legal Services,

Department of Music, Molecular Biology, School of Energy Resources, the College of Business (including the contents of the building's 1960 time capsule after it was opened during a construction project), the College of Arts and Sciences, the College of Agriculture (including Cooperative Extension and Experiment Stations), ASUW, MEChA, Multicultural Affairs, University Libraries,

Faculty Senate, and the Department of Family and Consumer Science. Of the university employees, some of the collections received include materials from Charlotte Davis, who worked at the university for 34 years, first as the assistant dean of women and later as the associate director of Student Affairs; James Walsh, a librarian who researched the history of Wyoming place names; former president Philip Dubois; retired Law professor Debra Donahue; John Nutter, who was the director of Financial Aid and later was the assistant to the Dean of Students; material from the family of Frank Trelease, who was the Dean of the Law School from 1960-1971; retired Botany professor Greg Brown; material from the family of former Dean of Engineering Sam Hakes; Gary Franc, a former Plant Sciences professor; material from the family of William Mulloy, a former Anthropology professor known for his Easter Island research; Larry

Weatherford, a retired professor from the College of Business; and material from the family of former head basketball coach Jim Brandenburg. Aid and later was the assistant to the Dean of Students; material from the family of Frank Trelease, who was the Dean of the Law School from 1960-1971; retired Botany professor Greg Brown; material from the family of former Dean of Engineering Sam Hakes; Gary Franc, a former Plant Sciences professor; material from the family of William Mulloy, a former Anthropology professor known for his Easter Island research; Larry Weatherford, a retired professor from the College of Business; and material from the family of former head basketball coach Jim Brandenburg. Organizational records received include historical materials from the Alumni Association, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Delta Theta, the UW Symphony Association, and Golden Key National Honor Society. Some notable donations from alumni include materials related to UW Summer Geology Field Camp, the Wyoming

Homemakers Association, scrapbooks of campus life dating back to the 1920s, 30s and 40; dance cards, and basketball memorabilia from the family of Milo Komenich who was a member of the 1943 national champion basketball team, as well as additional papers related to his teammate Kenny Sailors.

These short lists of materials from colleges and departments, organizations, retired employees, and alumni highlight the diversity of UW-related collections at UW. Materials received cover the expanse of 100 years and range from heavy science to student activities, and from basketball history to administrative records. There is something for everybody at the AHC. As the university's historian, I continue to research the history of campus units, buildings and grounds, and people and events. Current projects include the history of the origin of Pistol Pete who first appeared live on campus in 1971; the history of the Department of Atmospheric Science with its roots dating back to the early 1960s; historical research about the Honors College that began as a program in 1958; ongoing buildings and grounds research; and I conducted an oral history audio interview project with long-time Athletic Department employee and radio voice Kevin McKinney. Finally, I coauthored a book with my colleague, Erin Shadrick, about the history of Bureau of Mines that later became known as the Western Research Institute (WRI), which celebrated its 100th anniversary on July 1, 2024.
