Vincent O. Smith (BSCE Civil Engineering '50) is a distinguished alumni who has contributed significantly to the field of engineering. He was a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and the Chi Omega Engineering Chapter. Smith graduated from the University of Wyoming and later became a professor at the University of California, Los Angeles. He was also a member of the American Institute of Architects and the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Smith's career was marked by a strong commitment to education and service. He was a member of the Board of Trustees for the University of Wyoming and served as a director of the Engineering Foundation. He was also a member of the Board of Governors for the American Society of Civil Engineers and the American Institute of Architects.

In addition to his professional achievements, Smith was a dedicated family man. He was married to the former Dorothea B. Smith and had two children, Victoria and Jordan. Smith passed away in 2000, but his legacy lives on through his children and grandchildren, who continue to honor his memory.

Smith's contributions to the field of engineering and his dedication to education have left a lasting impact on the community. He is remembered as a true gentleman and a devoted family man.