OPEN FORUM

There was no one in the gallery to address the Senate tonight.

SPECIAL EVENT

Kent Nobile and Tucker Norman, the Bill Daniels Chair of Business Ethics and president of Ethics Club respectively addressed the Senate tonight to speak on behalf of the University’s Spark Tank program. Spark tank is how the University works with nonprofits in the local area. In 2018 they invested $10k and in 2019 they raised $12.5k split into 5 different groups. After these successes, they decided they wanted to raise more money and make a bigger difference on the community and to do this the University foundation got involved and pledged support during the Giving Day Campaign. During this campaign in 2020, they raised $45k which now allowed them to make larger investments into the community. Last year, they had the commitment of the UW Foundation and more professors wanted to get involved which allowed them to raise $57.5k in 2021. So far this year, they have raised $86k and this number is still growing. Larger organizations and companies are also beginning to get involved as OtterBox has donated $25k and Walmart has donated $5k. They have select four major nonprofits that will help provide essential needs to members of the community such as food, safety, security, and healthcare. From 2018-2020 they have seen exponential growth and they hope to expand as they have already been approached by other organizations around campus and hope to make this no longer solely an ethics club event but rather an entire college event. To decide the nonprofits, nonprofits will send in short videos from potential nominees where the club selects four finalists which are then toured and interviewed to learn more about the nonprofit. They will then be putting on an event where the nominees will give a final presentation where members will then vote, and monetary amounts will be awarded to the different organizations. Spark tank begins at 5pm in the Business Atrium on April 28th. They hope that ASUW can make it a campus wide effort, not just to Business students as it can benefit both the students by making them more involved in the community and showing that every dollar received goes back into the community.

COMMUNICATIONS

Executive Reports

President Swilling first reported that the green dot training will be taking place this Thursday and that it is a serious subject and needs to be taken seriously. He also reported that the legislation deadline has been hit and the 109th administration has broken the record for most legislation produced in a year. He also stated that elections have been wrapped up and that the voting record from 2014 has been broken. Inauguration and swearing in of the 110th administration President and Vice President and Senators will be on May 2nd in the Skylight lounge from 5-6pm. He is also preparing the transition from this administration to the next by working with his successor. He also mentioned that while he will no longer be serving in his President role, he will still be maintaining his spot on three committees at the University.

Chief of Staff Homer-Wambeam reported “First of all, I would like to offer a huge congratulations to all those who were voted into the next administration, I am so excited to see what the 110th achieves. It was a truly wonderful group of students that ran in elections this year, so congratulations to all of you who ran campaigns. Last week I helped table for elections as well as helped edit the ASUW Strategic Plan which is up for first reading tonight. Over this week and the next I will be working with executives on cleaning out the downstairs office, returning keys, finalizing transition documents, changing passwords, and completing any other tasks to make room for the next administration. I will also be working further with Vice President Anderson on ASUW’s end of the year banquet which is coming up next week. Today I tabled with Green Dot on UW’s Denim Day, I see that many of you wore jeans, green dot gear, or other denim clothing to senate, and I want to thank you all for participating in this important day of solidarity. It truly means the world to many people at this University. Finally, I would like to offer that if you are interested in applying to the Chief of Staff position for the 110th administration, please know that my door is always open if you would like ask any questions about the role, I have greatly enjoyed taking on this leadership role over the past year. Today I will also be giving a report on behalf of our Director of Marketing, Kaycee Clark. Director Clark would first like to say a massive thank you to everyone who helped with such a successful election last week. Breaking ASUW’s previous voting record from 2014 and nearly quadrupling last year’s total is extremely impressive. Other than his work with elections, Director Clark has been helping the Non-Traditional Student Council design a shirt for the end of the year and their last event along with designing a newsletter for them. Additionally, he helped “beautify” the strategic plan that is in Senate Bill #2804 and is in the process of “beautifying” the Fiscal Year 2023 budget analysis. To conclude, Director Clark is formulating an end of administration video. Chief Carrier has sent out a link to all of you about this, but as a reminder, if you have any of your major projects that you want to make sure are included in this end of the year video, please speak with Director Clark and he will make sure those get included!”

She also reported that most of her time this week has been taken up working on the strategic plan and writing the DEI resolution in collaboration with President Swilling and Director Sapien. She also informed the Senate that for the dinner with Governor Gordon, the attire will be business casual. If anyone has any questions, feel free to send her an email or visit her office hours.

Director of Marketing Clark’s report was read by Chief of Staff Homer-Wambeam.

Director of Partners, Programs, and Events Hacke was not present.

Director of Wellness and Sustainability McLean reported “This week has been spent working on the Climate Action Resolution, which is up for first reading tonight. The final recommendations will be made by the Laramie Joint Climate Action task force following the Shepherd Symposium on April 22, Friday of this week. That will go from 12-4 in the Union ballroom, please stop by for more information.

As many of y’all know, today was UW Denim Day and the Green Dot Day of Action. I am thrilled to see our whole senate decked out in Denim and green dot gear in support of survivors! For those of you who don’t know, in 1992 an 18-year-old girl in Italy was raped by her 45 year old driving instructor. She reported, and her rapist was convicted, but in 1998 the Italian Supreme Court Decision overturned his conviction, citing the victim’s tight jeans as a reason. In 1999, people started wearing denim during the month of April in protest of this decision, and in protest of victim blaming in the courts and in our culture. This young Italian woman’s story is not an uncommon or unfamiliar one. Many survivors never receive justice, and are never believed when they tell their stories. Wearing denim is just one way that we can show survivors on our campus that we support them, and seeing this body wearing denim shows exactly that. 27% of UW students experience rape and sexual violence while attending college, and according to RAINN college students of all genders are statistically more likely to experience rape and sexual assault than their peers of the same age. Sexual assault unfortunately happens on our campus, there are survivors on this campus who need support. Who need love. And need to be believed. Today, all over campus, we got to spread awareness for sexual assault, share the mission of Green Dot, listen to the stories of survivors and raise money for the Survivors Emergency Fund. This fund is to cover the expenses of survivors here at UW. Reporting, legal proceedings, therapy can all cost a considerable amount of money, and the money that we are raising will help survivors with those costs. Thank you to the dean of students office, SAFE project, Green Dot, all of the students who wore denim and donated today, and thank you to this body for showing support to survivors tonight. As a member of ASUW and a student on our campus, I am so proud to have been part of this and as a survivor myself, I can say that this support is necessary and felt. I would love it if y’all could stick around after the meeting tonight to take a picture of everyone in their denim and green dot gear, that would be awesome.”

The Judicial Council was not present.

Vice President Anderson reported that submissions for the senatorial scholarship requirements are due by tomorrow afternoon. He also reported that the green dot training is this Thursday at 5pm in Half Acre room 215. He also said the ASUW end of year banquet if April 27th, so please make sure to fill out the form sent out by Sunday so that the proper amount of food can be ordered. Finally, he wanted to give a shoutout to outreach, programming, and elections chair Senator Pradhanang for putting on great events for the week leading to the most votes of all time.

Assistant Director Hansen was not present.

Accountant Schaef wanted to thank everyone for their work on the scholarship committees and those on the outreach, programming, and elections committee. She wishes the 109th administration wouldn’t end as their goodbyes are bittersweet. Finally, she gave her superstar shoutout to the Advocacy, Diversity, and Policy committee for their work with special projects.

Committee Reports

Steering reported they met on Monday to allow the deadline to be extended for the 16 pieces of legislation submitted.

Advocacy, Diversity, and Policy reported updates regarding the near completion of their efforts to distribute anti-drink tampering products to UWYO students for free, funded by ASUW Special Projects. Despite some unexpected production and shipping delays, ADP is proud to report that they distributed 200 anti-drink tampering products just through tabling last week, and they have identified twenty-three high-traffic locations on campus to stock these products, where students may access these materials at any time. Fifteen out of twenty-three of these locations have already been equipped with a stash of products, and ADP anticipates that the last 8 locations will be stocked later this week. ADP recognizes and honors the students who have shared their experiences of drug-facilitated sexual assault with ADP over the past two weeks, and sincerely thanks those survivors who were courageous enough to share their stories.

Budget and Planning reported they met last week to discuss the realignments and legislation steered to them. They are working on following up with two other realignments. They also made a note to the future administration to simplify the realignment process.

Outreach, Programming, and Elections reported “OPE did not meet last week however, we do want to announce and first congratulate the 110th administration, I am super excited for you guys, I know you all will do great! also, I would like to wholeheartedly thank everyone who helped with the entirety of the elections process. So, thank you to the executive Directors, pro-staff, my fellow OPE committee and all the senators who helped us with outreach and tabling. OPE cannot take the credit alone and could not have done it without you all! Now secondly, our snack giveaway the COE has been going great! We have one more day tomorrow that we will be tabling. We still have 2 slots from 9-10am and 10-11am available if anyone would like to help, please reach out to me.”

Programs and Institutional Development reported “PID met last Friday and performed check ins on program evaluations which will be concluding this Friday. Both Senator Bogus and Senator Castronovo conducted evaluation of the First-Year Senate today at their meeting and gained valuable insight from the First-year Senators. In the final weeks, PID will be focusing on how to improve our programs and getting ready to pass the torch on to the next administration.”

Safety and Wellness had no report.

Student Organization and Funding Board reported “I attended my last SOFB meeting yesterday at 3:30 in the Warm Valley Room. We heard from CPH about their formal recruitment event, it was decided that they would come back next week after they make some changes. We then heard from Sigma Phi Epsilon for their Better Man Scholarship Event, their event was denied. We also heard from WASA for their African culture event, we approved their request. Finally, we heard a budget realignment from QCC, we approved their realignment.”

The restructuring Ad-Hoc reported “Ad-hoc met last Friday and dove further into the construction of a white paper for redoing the strategic partnerships with ASUW. We redefined some of the vaguer topics to create a better picture of how we currently see the new partnership module for the next administration to utilize.”

Strategic planning Ad-Hoc met last week to finalize the draft language with the help of Director Clark. They will be meeting for the final time this upcoming week.
