

Stethophyma gracile

Stethophyma gracile is restricted to moist forested meadows in Wyoming. It is assumed that eggs overwinter in the soil. Its feeding habits in Wyoming are not known. Because of limited suitable habitat and scarcity, it is not a pest in this state.

Ref: Otte 1981, and Capinera and Sechrist 1982.