The Honorable Joseph B. Meyer
Wyoming State Treasurer
200 West 24th Street
Cheyenne, Wyoming 82002

Dear Joe:

It is my pleasure to submit to you, the Governor, and all members of the Wyoming Legislature the 2008 annual reports of the University of Wyoming as required under:

W.S. 21-16-903 – University of Wyoming Endowment Challenge Program

W.S. 21-16-1403 – University of Wyoming Athletic Facilities Matching Program

W.S. 21-16-1003 – University of Wyoming Academic Facilities Matching Program

This is the eighth annual report covering the Endowment Challenge Program, the fifth annual report for the Athletic Facilities Matching Program, and the third annual report for the Academic Facilities Matching Program. Without a doubt, the University of Wyoming has experienced and continues to experience extraordinary private support that is, in large part, the result of the incomparable confidence that our state elected officials and the Wyoming Legislature have demonstrated in UW with these matching fund programs. I can assure you that they have not only strengthened UW as an institution, but they have directly benefited our students and generated returns for all Wyoming's citizens.

In each section of this report – the Academic Facilities Match, the Athletic Facilities Match, and the Endowment Challenge Program – you will find examples of our donors' generosity and its impact, as well as detailed financial information. With this information comes the university's appreciation for the tremendous generosity of the state and its ongoing confidence in our faculty, staff, and students. We look forward to working together with Wyoming policymakers and our generous donors in the coming years to continue to provide those quality programs and services that have earned that confidence.

Sincerely,

Thomas Buchanan
President

COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

Robert L. Lang Graduate Fellowship at the James C. Hageman Sustainable Agriculture Research and Extension Center

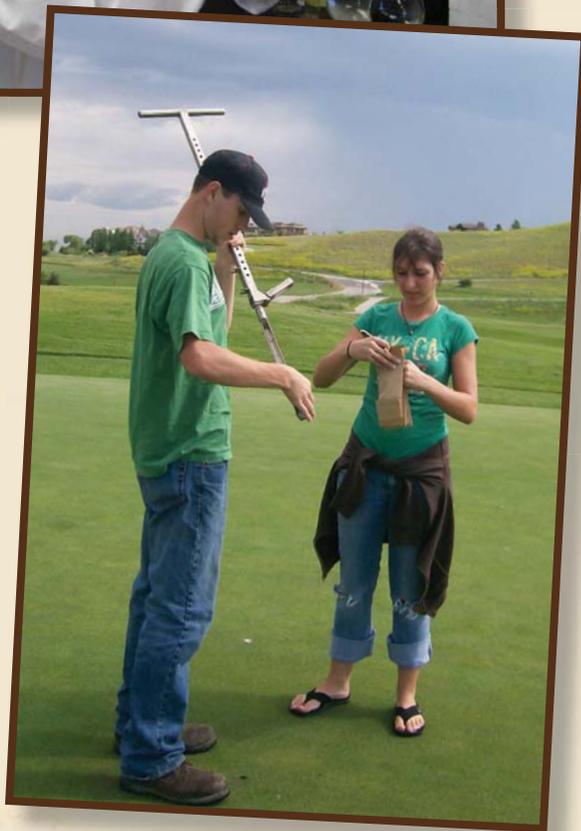

Created in 2007 with a gift from Professor Gordon Kearl, the Robert L. Lang Graduate Fellowship will support graduate student research programs at the James C. Hageman Sustainable Agriculture Research and Extension Center (SAREC). Research experience is a key component of graduate student education. Dr. Kearl, a long-time faculty member who worked with producers throughout the state, understood the importance of applied research to graduate education and to Wyoming's agriculture industry. This endowment will support plant science, range resource management, or agricultural economics graduate students working on research projects at SAREC. This endowment, together with the new wet lab, will offer graduate students and faculty members the needed tools for their agricultural research.

E.A. Whitney Professorship in Agriculture

Last year, Whitney Benefits Inc., Sheridan College, and the University of Wyoming created a new faculty position based at the College of Agriculture's Sheridan Research and Extension (R&E) Center. For many years, the College of Agriculture and Sheridan College have worked closely on undergraduate agriculture programs. Collaborative programs include agriculture classes at Sheridan College taught by our R&E center director and a new internship program in horticulture. To support increased interest in natural resource management and horticulture, Whitney Benefits, Sheridan College, and the University of Wyoming have entered into a partnership to offer upper level classes in horticulture/agroecology. The new faculty member will be funded by a state matched gift from Whitney Benefits. Next fall the university will begin offering third-year classes to University of Wyoming students housed at Sheridan College.

Beatrice Thomson-Constance Steik Wilkie Research Fund in Family and Consumer Sciences

The Department of Family and Consumer Sciences (FCS) is the largest department within the College of Agriculture with 180 undergraduate and 11 graduate students. Human nutrition, food science, and dietetics are major focus areas within the department. The Thomson-Wilkie research fund supports graduate student and faculty member research on nutritional factors that impact human health. Like many departments, FCS aims to increase graduate student enrollments. This year, the Thomson-Wilkie research fund provided summer stipends for three human nutrition graduate students.

The Photojournalism Project

When freelance photographer Larsh K. Bristol (B.A., 1974) lost his life in a motorcycle accident, his circle of friends felt their loss deeply and determined to create for him a legacy at their beloved alma mater. In 2007 they did so, creating The Photojournalism Project at the University of Wyoming in Memory of Larsh K. Bristol. This endowment puts in place an opportunity for students to spend a semester or summer photographing a project of their own choosing and design. Students are challenged to come up with an idea, plan its execution, carry it out, and mount an exhibition afterward. A faculty mentor advises them, but the process requires a great deal of personal initiative and creativity. In the process students gain self-understanding, get the measure of their passion for photo documentation, and learn the quality of their creative impulses and eye for visual story telling. Over time, this endowment will inspire much creativity, capture many stories, and perhaps even launch some careers.

The first recipient of the Larsh Bristol photojournalism internship was Joseph Riis, who presented a very mature, perceptive and exciting proposal to photograph the migration of pronghorn from the Tetons, southeast to the Green River, the third longest overland migration of mammals in the world. Mr. Riis seeks to bring greater awareness of this amazing twice yearly trek to the residents of Wyoming. Living out of his pick-up truck for six months as he followed the pronghorn, Mr. Riis took hundreds upon hundreds of pictures and learned much about these animals as they migrated north and then back south.

The availability of state matching funds lifted the sights of the donors to commit to endow a memorial fund of at least $50,000. For now, thanks to matching funds, students receive $5,000 to pursue their visions. The ongoing availability of matching funds for future gifts now has the donors thinking about making this the premier internship for photojournalism in the country. The donors would like to increase the funding so that students can spend up to a year and travel as far and wide as needed to document their visual stories. State matching funds makes this ambition possible, and opens to our students an amazing, life-changing opportunity.

Athletics

The Bill Campbell UW Football Excellence Fund

Bill Campbell has donated $50,000 to The Bill Campbell UW Football Excellence Fund. This gift was graciously matched by the State of Wyoming. The net income of the fund will be used to foster excellence and provide financial support to the football program. Mr. Campbell has been a long-time faithful supporter of many programs at the University of Wyoming. This Campbell gift will enable the football program to continue to expand quality opportunities for UW football student-athletes.

The Joe Scott Gift for the Athletic Facility Campaign

Joe Scott has committed $135,000 to fund the completion of the War Memorial Stadium Club and Suite project. This gift was graciously matched by the state of Wyoming. Joe Scott is not a graduate of the University of Wyoming, but he has made his living doing business in the high plains of Wyoming. He believes strongly in giving back some of his financial success to the state that provided him so many opportunities. This Scott gift has enabled UW to complete the War Memorial Stadium Club and Suite project in a first class manner.

Business

COLLEGE OF BUSINESS

The McMurry Foundation College of Business Dean's Excellence Fund

Mick and Susie McMurry of Casper, Wyoming recently donated $5,000,000 to the College of Business. The state of Wyoming is matching the McMurry gift through its UW endowment challenge program to create a $10 million endowment. The McMurry gift will help to improve student experiences, curriculum development, faculty recruiting and enhancement, and the college's outreach efforts. The endowment will provide a steady stream of funding that enables the college to respond quickly to emerging opportunities and to pursue core initiatives. Additionally, the endowment will allow the college's leadership team to invest in programs where the need is greatest and the potential for success is highest.

Bill Daniels Chair of Business Ethics Endowment

Business ethics education in the Rocky Mountain region received a major boost when the Daniels Fund awarded the University of Wyoming College of Business $3 million for the Bill Daniels Chair of Business Ethics. The Daniels Fund commitment is the largest single private foundation contribution for an academic program endowment in UW's history. The state of Wyoming is matching the commitment through its UW endowment challenge program to create a $6 million endowment. The support for the Bill Daniels Chair of Business Ethics allows UW to further integrate business ethics concepts throughout the curriculum, expand the program to the state's seven community colleges, and will provide opportunities for students to interact with business executives to better understand the ethical expectations and issues faced in the "real world."

The Johnson Career Center

The Johnson Career Center will soon be in place at UW's College of Business. This new facility will provide career management services for UW's business students, including career counseling, job search strategies and marketing, and networking tools to assist students in launching their careers. The career center was made possible thanks to the support of Peter Johnson and his wife, Paula Green Johnson, of Salt Lake City, Utah. The Johnsons recently donated $1 million to the College of Business in order to fund the facility. Their gift has been matched by the state of Wyoming to create a $2 million endowment.

Education

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

Jane and Michael J. Sullivan Wyoming Teachers' Scholarship Fund

The College of Education's ability to grow is directly correlated with funding for both undergraduate and graduate student support. The Jane and Michael J. Sullivan Wyoming Teachers' Scholarship Fund provides the flexibility to support all students pursuing a degree in education and strengthens our ability to attract the best and brightest students on both the UW/CC and the Laramie campus.

John P. Ellbogen College of Education Dean's Excellence Fund

The John P. Ellbogen College of Education Dean's Excellence Fund provides maximum flexibility for pursuing opportunities in targeted areas that align with the college's mission. The impacts of our degree programs, our work with pre-kindergarten through grade 16 educators and leaders, our ability to conduct and publish research, and our service and outreach to the state is greatly increased by this endowed fund.

Engineering and Applied Science

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING AND APPLIED SCIENCE

BP Rock and Fluids Lab

This gift was given to the Chemical and Petroleum Engineering Department for a Rock and Fluids Properties Laboratory through a facility remodel and acquisition of new equipment. Two facilities will actually be created: one to focus on undergraduate teaching lab needs and the second to promote graduate research.

Marathon Internship Endowment

This gift creates a UW partnership with Marathon to increase the extent of interdisciplinary interaction among students with engineering or applied science backgrounds. The endowment is to be used to fund excellence in student experiential learning opportunities through internships, co-operative work/study programs, and other industry and academic related experiences.

ConocoPhillips Chemical and Petroleum Excellence Fund Endowment

The endowment given to the Chemical and Petroleum Engineering Department is to be used to fund excellence in petroleum and chemical engineering education and research through support for faculty, staff, students, programs, equipment, materials and facilities at the University of Wyoming.

Ellbogen Foundation Gift to the Next Generation Program

The John P. Ellbogen Foundation doubled their initial 2006 gift of $100,000 to add to the College of Engineering and Applied Science Next Generation Program Endowment. The initiatives of this program promote the early exposure of prospective students to engineering and selected areas of applied science, resulting in the recruitment of additional students; increasing the number of graduating students, and enhancing the quantity and quality of graduates.

Fuller Individual Gift to Petroleum Engineering Excellence Endowment

Tom and Darlis Fuller initiated this endowment for the Chemical and Petroleum Engineering Department to fund excellence in petroleum engineering education and research through support for faculty, staff, students, programs, equipment, materials and facilities at UW.

Health Sciences

COLLEGE OF HEALTH SCIENCES

Marcia L. and William G. Dale Nursing Scholarship

With its generous endowment, the Marcia L. and William G. Dale Nursing Scholarship is positively addressing Wyoming's increasing nursing shortage. The Dales have been advocates for excellence in nursing education for over 40 years. Marcia served as dean of the School of Nursing for 10 years. As evidenced by this endowment, students and the welfare of the citizens of Wyoming remain top priorities for Marcia and Bill Dale.

Yoxey Family Excellence Fund for the School of Pharmacy

The Yoxey Family Excellence Fund affords the School of Pharmacy a unique opportunity to continue and expand its legacy of outstanding, award-winning service to the state of Wyoming by establishing a permanent endowment to be distributed at the discretion of the dean of the School of Pharmacy to promote the school's excellence and to maintain its remarkable tradition of vital research in areas such as cardiovascular health and the treatment and prevention of diabetes. Ronald W. Yoxey, owner of the Broadway Pharmacy in Pueblo, Colorado, received his degree in pharmacy from UW in 1953 and has maintained consistent support to the school and its initiatives over the years.

The Ruth Campbell-Louise Thouin-Donna Marburger Physical Education Scholarship

Donna Marburger of Laramie established and endowed the Ruth Campbell-Louise Thouin-Donna Marburger Physical Education Scholarship to pay the resident tuition, fees, and books of full-time undergraduate students with declared majors in physical education. Aptitude for leadership in the area of movement science will be the primary award criteria of the scholarship that gives preference to Wyoming residents who demonstrate financial need.

The Charles and Ruth Rile Scholarship

The Charles and Ruth Rile Scholarship allows the Dean of the College of Health Sciences to determine the college's greatest area of need and to award the scholarship accordingly. Although not required, a strong preference will be made to award the scholarship to a student who has expressed a sincere desire to practice nursing or medicine within the state of Wyoming following completion of their education. The generosity and foresight of the donors of this scholarship help the college address the shortage of primary health care providers in our frontier state.

Law

COLLEGE LAW

William N. Brimmer Legal Education Center

Philanthropy and state matching funds have played vital roles in advancing the UW College of Law toward realizing its academic goals and have had an immeasurable impact on the quality legal education offered at Wyoming's only law school. The state of Wyoming's matching program has enabled the College of Law to raise almost $4.3 million (including matching funds) to create the William N. Brimmer Legal Education Center. As of September 2008, over thirty individuals and law firms have contributed matchable gifts to this exciting facility campaign. The new facility will feature a multi-dimensional space that can be configured as a high-tech courtroom, a classroom, or a lecture hall seating more than 160. Additional features to be included in the Brimmer center are a seminar room, jury deliberation room, judge's chambers, a holding area for defendants, and a sound booth. The new courtroom will provide law students a venue in which to simulate the trial experience, while also providing a functional courtroom for the Wyoming Second Judicial District, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit, and the Wyoming Supreme Court, situating the College of Law as a premier learning facility in the region.

The Williams Speaker Series

Private funding and legislative support of this speaker series has significantly enhanced opportunities for law students, the state bar and bench, university community, and general public to enjoy nationally-renowned speakers. The Williams Speaker Series was established in 2004 through a generous endowment gift from Carl M. Williams (J.D. '56) and corresponding matching funds from the State of Wyoming. This series has enabled the University of Wyoming College of Law to host an impressive series of events including presentations by United State Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, former judge and independent counsel Kenneth Starr, founder and chief trial counsel of the Southern Poverty Law Center Morris Dees, and most recently, the Health Care Reform and Patient Safety: Challenges and Opportunities for Medicine and the Law Symposium.

Libraries

LIBRARIES

Emmett D. Chisum Special Collections Room

Historian and scholar Emmett D. Chisum recently pledged a $1 million estate gift to the University Libraries to establish an endowment in support of the Special Collections Reading Room in the new addition of Coe Library. The gift will double in size with a $1 million contribution from the Wyoming State Matching Fund program. Chisum joined the University of Wyoming Library as a faculty member and reference librarian in 1958 and has remained a staunch supporter of the libraries since that time. This will be the second endowment established by Chisum for the libraries. The first, the Emmett D. Chisum Library Endowment Fund, supports the purchase of materials for the Gracy Raymon Hebard Collection, a compilation of publications about Wyoming and by Wyoming authors. Chisum's most recent donation will be used to support the special collections room by providing the funds necessary to sustain and enhance the physical environment in which unique publications, like the Hebard Collection, will be housed.

The Bindschadler Family Study Room

Darryl and Helga Bindschadler, long-time advocates for the University Libraries, have established an endowment in support of a group study room in the new addition of Coe Library, currently under construction. The Bindschadler's $50,000 gift has grown to $100,000 thanks to the Wyoming State Matching Fund. Darryl Bindschadler, a Wyoming physician, practiced pulmonary and internal medicine in Cheyenne for 30 years before retiring in 1999. He remains involved in the medical field and has continued his service to the citizens of Wyoming through his numerous civic contributions, including serving as a board member for Blue Cross Blue Shield of Wyoming. He likens the library to the "heart of the university" and says he is "most interested in increasing the awareness of the libraries' role as a learning and research resource and as a repository of history." Dr. Bindschadler is a founding member of the University Libraries Development Board and has served as board chair since April 2007.

Helga Bindschadler has had a long and distinguished career in nursing and formerly served as a faculty member at the Fay W. Whitney School of Nursing.

School of Energy Resources

School of Energy Resources Facility

Through gifts from EnCana, Shell, BP America, Marathon, ConocoPhillips and Questar, which were matched by the state of Wyoming, the University of Wyoming is moving forward to design and construct a home for its School of Energy Resources.

Donor	Total Funds	Pledges/Gifts	Wyoming State Match
EnCana	$ 10,000,000	$ 5,000,000	$ 5,000,000
Shell	$ 4,000,000	$ 2,000,000	$ 2,000,000
BP America	$ 4,000,000	$ 2,000,000	$ 2,000,000
Marathon	$ 500,000	$ 250,000	$ 250,000
ConocoPhillips	$ 340,000	$ 170,000	$ 170,000
Questar	$ 60,000	$ 30,000	$ 30,000
Total	$ 18,900,000	$ 9,450,000	$ 9,450,000

The facility will serve two purposes. First, it will house offices, meeting space, and laboratories for operation of the university's energy programs. The second purpose will be to provide a common working environment for faculty members, students, and researchers from the wide array of disciplines that contribute to the School. The central concept will be to recreate, in an academic setting, the interdisciplinary research environment common in industrial organizations and the nation's top-tier national laboratories. Such an environment will encourage day-to-day interaction between chemical engineers, geophysicists, mathematicians, economists, petroleum engineers, and others, providing an unusually rich and practically oriented educational experience for undergraduate students, graduate students, and postdoctoral fellows.

President Tom Buchanan stated, "This new facility is essential to our School of Energy Resources, but only as far as it goes in providing an environment in which our faculty and students can excel in teaching and learning and translating knowledge into ways to help extend the long-term energy future for Wyoming, the region and the nation."

International Programs

INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS

Richard B. and Lynne V. Cheney Study Abroad Endowment

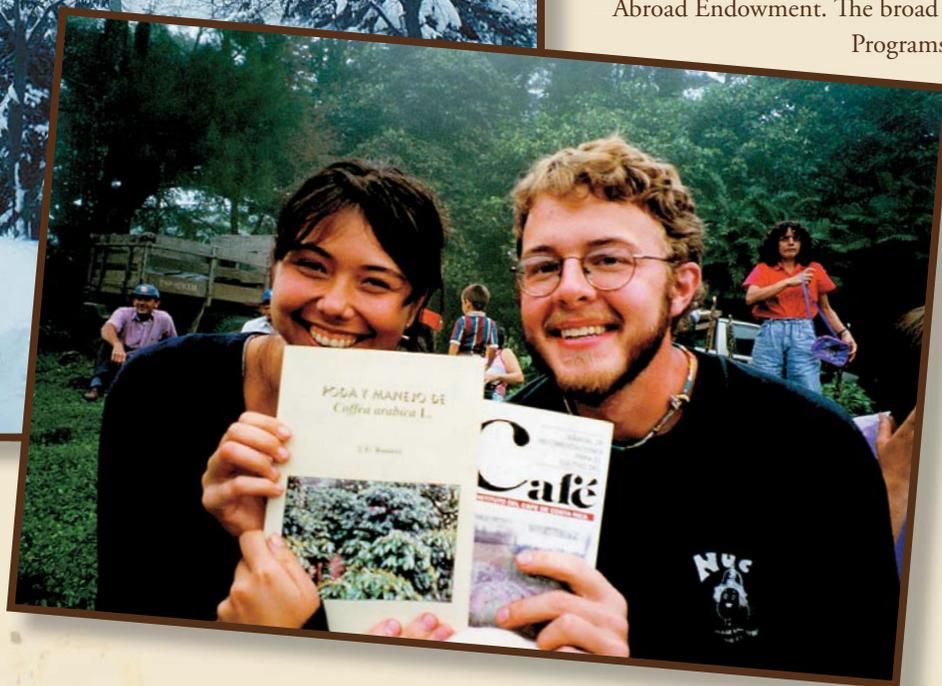

UW's goal is to provide global opportunities for every student with a desire to study or intern abroad. These opportunities help shape UW students into global citizens. Scholarships provide critical resources that assist students with the total costs of studying abroad or with round-trip ticket funding, often the major barrier to study abroad.

Through the Richard B. and Lynne V. Cheney Study Abroad Endowment, the University of Wyoming has an unprecedented opportunity to expand the opportunities for our students to live, study, and intern abroad. The Cheney Study Abroad Endowment will create the largest university-specific scholarship fund for studying abroad in the United States.

Four scholarship funding programs will be supported by the Cheney Study Abroad Endowment. The broad array of options provided by the Cheney

Programs will help cover international travel costs

(according to student surveys, the largest perceived barrier to study abroad), in-country travel, tuition, and living expenses. A key component of the Cheney Programs will be that recipients will participate in activities that further internationalization at UW upon their return from abroad.
