Call Title:	ACTION FOR WOMEN'S HEALTH
Programme:	Pivotal
Objective:	On October 9, 2024, Pivotal, a Melinda French Gates organization, launched Action for Women's Health, a $250 million global open call that will fund organizations around the world that are improving women's mental and physical health. The ability of women to exercise their full power in society is directly connected to the quality of their health. Yet today, women experience inequities across all aspects of their health. These inequities can negatively impact their daily lives, as well as their economic prospects and prosperity, their ability to engage in their communities, and their opportunities to achieve their goals.
Eligible Activities:	Action for Women's Health will support an array of organizations—of diverse geographies, sizes, perspectives, and approaches—united by their work to improve the mental and physical health of women. This initiative seeks to open access to funding streams to organizations and groups that historically have not had access to them. This is a global call for proposals.
Eligible Applicants :	Eligible organizations serve women and have a record of improving women's mental or physical health. They should centre equity in their approach and be poised to scale their work to strengthen the health of more women. Organisations from around the world are invited to apply.
Total Budget:	$5,000,000
Deadline:	3/12/2024

Call Title:	AI ACCOUNTABILITY GRANTS
Programme:	European AI & Society Fund
Objective:	The focus of the AI Accountability Grants is to support work that will contribute to addressing how AI affects people and society. The Fund does not prescribe which approaches, tactics and regulations to use. They have also not specified geographies or issue areas to prioritise – they want to hear from organisations and coalitions in the field where there are opportunities to make change happen.
Eligible Activities:	Examples of work that could be funded: Conducting research to identify provisions in labour and human rights laws that may provide a path to justice for communities harmed by algorithmic decisions in the workplace or when accessing welfare benefits. Using transparency mechanisms to find evidence of AI harms that can be used in future campaigns, complaints, and legal cases. Preparation of complaints on high-risk systems, to be submitted under the AI Act once it is in force. Drafting and submitting complaints under EU regulations, such as the GDPR, that challenge the unlawful use of personal data for training AI systems, for example in healthcare. Developing experimental litigation strategies to limit the harmful environmental impact of data centres, including pre-litigation research, evidence gathering and legal fees. Strategies to challenge corporate power through antitrust mechanisms, such as investigations by competition authorities or actions under the Digital Markets Act. This could involve research to provide evidence to regulators and cooperation with consumer bodies.

Actions must take place in EU, EEA, Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Kosovo, Montenegro, North Macedonia, Serbia, Switzerland and the UK. |
Eligible Applicants:	Organisations should be registered and carry out their work in one or several of the following countries: the EU, EEA, Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Kosovo, Montenegro, North Macedonia, Serbia, Switzerland and the UK. Organisations must have non-profit status.

Call Title:	PRINCE TALAL INTERNATIONAL PRIZE
Programme:	Arab Gulf Program for Development (AGFUND)
Objective:	Since its establishment in 1999, the prize has been known as AGFUND International Prize for Pioneering Human Development Projects. Following the passing away of His Royal Highness Prince Talal bin Abdul Aziz Al Saud, founder of AGFUND, in December 2018, the AGFUND's Board of Directors decided to rename the prize after the late Prince Talal. This decision was taken to commemorate his lifelong dedication to the service of human development and poverty alleviation through AGFUND and the other institutions he established. Hence, the prize new name is "Prince Talal International Prize for Human Development".
Eligible Activities:	It is an annual prize established in 1999 by the Arab Gulf Programme for Development (AGFUND), with the aim of inciting and encouraging innovation and creativity in the areas of human development. The idea of the Prize was stemmed from AGFUND's approach to enhance development performance and support key development projects in order to achieve the goal of sustainability and investment in people. In this sense, Prince Talal International Prize is considered to be an important tool to identify successful development projects, reward them and disseminate their innovative ideas to best contribute to the improvement of development work. It is also an innovative approach and a strategic instrument to exchange successful experiences to strengthen the mechanisms of development cooperation and project funding with special emphasis on the most prominent factors that militate against development and affect the vulnerable groups, particularly women and children in developing countries. These include poverty, social exclusion, socio-economic marginalization, education and health.

Actions can take place worldwide. |
| Eligible Applicants: | No one can nominate his/her or its project. However, each of the following entities is eligible, as third party, to nominate for the Prize; UN organizations, regional, | international and national NGOs, governments agencies, public institutions, universities and research centres, syndicates and experts in the field.

Call Title:	Information Measures Relating to the Common Agricultural Policy (IMCAP)
Programme:	European Commission (EC)
Objective:	The European Commission is seeking applications to support for information measures relating to the common agricultural policy (IMCAP). Objectives The general objective of the call is to raise awareness about the Common Agricultural Policy (CAP) within the EU and amongst all citizens, farmers and non-farmers alike. The CAP is a policy for all EU citizens and the benefits that it provides must be more widely explained and demonstrated. The key messaging should be fully consistent with the Commission's legal requirement to carry out information measures on the CAP within the meaning of Article 46 of Regulation (EU) 2021/2116. The proposals submitted shall provide coherent, objective, evidence-based and comprehensive information in order to help explain, implement and develop the CAP and to raise public awareness of its content and objectives, including its contribution to ensuring a fair income for farmers, stable supply of affordable food, tackling climate change, promoting the sustainable management of natural resources, encouraging the highest standards of animal welfare and supporting the rural economy. The focus of proposals submitted should be on addressing lack of information about European agriculture and the CAP within identified target audiences. This should be achieved using facts, backed-up with reliable data, and overall raising public awareness on the relevance of EU support to agriculture and rural development through the CAP.
Eligible Activities:	Themes The CAP plays a key role in supporting the EU's farming sector and rural areas. It aims to ensure a competitive and sustainable agriculture model with respect to economic, social and environmental aspects. The information measures should specifically focus on the role of the CAP and CAP Strategic Plans in supporting a fair and sufficient income for farmers), in ensuring food security and the long-term competitiveness of EU agriculture, in the resilience and the transition to sustainable food production systems, including for the livestock sector, in supporting generational renewal and improving gender balance and participation of women, and (e) in strengthening the position of farmers in the value chain and protecting them from unfair trading practices. Eligible Activities This call targets large-audience information and communication measures to inform citizens about the CAP (including the national CAP strategic plans).

	The information measures must include one or several activities reaching a significant number of citizens, such as: Production and distribution/broadcast of print, multimedia or audio-visual material. Web and social media outreach activities that reach a significant number of citizens. Media events. Conferences, seminars, workshops that reach a significant number of citizens. Studies on CAP-related issues (if required to support the implementation of the information measures). Ineligible Activities Measures required by law. General or statutory meetings. Other activities where the communication and information measures are not the main component.
Eligible Applicants:	Eligibility Criteria In order to be eligible, the applicants (beneficiaries and affiliated entities) must: Be legal entities (public or private bodies). Be established in one of the eligible countries, i.e.: – EU Member States (including overseas countries and territories (OCTs). Beneficiaries and affiliated entities must register in the Participant Register — before submitting the proposal — and will have to be validated by the Central Validation Service (REA Validation). For the validation, they will be requested to upload documents showing legal status and origin. Other entities may participate in other consortium roles, such as associated partners, subcontractors, third parties giving in-kind contributions, etc.
Total Budget: €4,000,000
Deadline: 16/01/2025

Call Title:	Wellcome Trust Awards for Early-Career Researchers
Programme:	WELLCOME
Objective:	The Wellcome is requesting proposals for its Trust Awards for early-career researchers from any discipline who are ready to develop their research identity.
Eligible Activities:	Through innovative projects, they will deliver shifts in understanding related to human life, health and wellbeing. By the end of the award, they will be ready to lead their own independent research programme.
Eligible Applicants:	Eligibility Criteria You can apply to this scheme if you are an early-career researcher and you are ready to design, plan and deliver your own innovative research project that aims to: Advance understanding in your field Develop methodologies, conceptual frameworks, tools or techniques that could benefit health-related research. During the award, they expect you to:

	Expand your technical skills and/or your experience of different research methodologies or frameworks
	Build a collaborative network with other researchers in your field
	Develop your people management skills
	Advance your understanding of how to complete research responsibly and promote a positive and inclusive culture.
	Lead applicant career stage and experience
	At the point you submit your application, you must have completed a substantive period of research training relevant to your discipline.
	You must have:
	completed a PhD (for example, in the life sciences) or an equivalent higher research degree. At the point of application you must have passed your viva examination, or if you have not started a PhD or equivalent degree, at least four years' equivalent research experience (for example, in the humanities and social sciences).
	You may also have some postdoctoral experience in your proposed field of study, but no more than three years unless you can demonstrate how other factors have impacted on your research career. When they review how much postdoctoral experience you have, they will allow for part-time work, the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic, career breaks (for example, parental leave or long-term sick leave) and other significant amounts of time spent outside research (for example, clinical training).
	They will also consider whether you have changed research discipline. For example, moving from astrophysics to computational neuroscience. There may be some crossover, such as in research sites or techniques, but the shift should still be a significant change.
	They consider postdoctoral experience as any periods spent in research after you passed your PhD/higher research degree viva.
	You should be able to demonstrate:
	a good understanding of research methodology evidence of project delivery and analysis.
	You should not need close supervision to complete your proposed research, although you may need training in new techniques and experimental approaches.
