New Opportunities

Call Title:	Resilient, Inclusive and Sustainable Environments (RISE) Grants Challenge
Programme:	International Union for Conservation of Nature
Objective:	The RISE Grants Challenge offers an ambitious opportunity for organizations working at the intersection of environmental sustainability and gender equality. This year's RISE Grants Challenge, stewarded by IUCN with support from USAID and Norad, seeks to fund projects grounded in community-driven conservation work—from marine and terrestrial Indigenous-managed lands to areas conserved through other effective area-based measures.
Eligible Activities:	The opportunity is open to a wide range of legally registered entities—from local grassroots collectives to international NGOs, Indigenous Peoples' organizations, women-led enterprises, faith-based organizations, academic and research institutions, and even private sector firms pursuing strictly non-profit objectives. Partnerships are a central requirement, as all proposals must include at least one organization that is an IUCN Member, a previous RISE grantee, or a former Global EbA Fund grantee, reflecting a demand for proven experience and shared credibility. This is more than a call for funding; it's a call for solidarity, innovation, and partnership. The RISE challenge presents a powerful pathway for organizations to contribute to a globally shared mission: the integration of gender justice and sustainability at the frontline of conservation.
Eligible Applicants:	Implementation must occur within one of twenty-three eligible countries spanning Africa, Asia, and the Americas. These include Brazil, Cambodia, Colombia, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Ecuador, Ethiopia, Gabon, Ghana, Guatemala, Indonesia, Kenya, Mexico, Mozambique, Nepal, Peru, the Philippines, Republic of Congo, Sri Lanka, Sudan, Thailand, United Republic of Tanzania, Vietnam, and Zambia. Projects should focus their efforts within no more than two or three sub-counties or comparable local administrative areas to ensure relevance and depth of impact.
Total Budget:	€600,000
Deadline:	08/09/2025

Call Title:	Applications open for TUI Forests Programme

Objective:	The TUI Care Foundation's TUI Forests programme places forests at the heart of thriving communities and sustainable tourism destinations while supporting local livelihoods through initiatives like community-run tree nurseries and forest-based tourism.
Eligible Activities:	Between tree planting and community action, the programme has reached impressive milestones up to 2025.
