| Objective:                                                       | Formerly established in 2015, the UEFA Foundation for Children was established on the initiative of the UEFA President, Michel Platini, reflecting UEFA's desire to play a more active role in society. The Foundation aims to help children and safeguard their rights. Sport, and football in particular, can provide support in the areas of health and children's education, as well as promoting access to sporting activity, facilitating children's personal development and fostering the integration of minorities.                                                                                                                                        |
| Eligible Activities:                                             | This call for projects is aimed at any organisation that shares the values of the UEFA foundation and proposes practical measures to help children, in the areas of access to sport, health, education, employment, personal development and supporting vulnerable children. The projects seek to achieve the foundation's objectives – i.e. to help children by providing support in the following areas: health; education; access to sport; personal development; integration of minorities; protection of children's rights. Applications are invited from organisations anywhere in the world. Support is not limited to projects within Europe. |

| Objective:           | The Common Good Cyber Fund Grant Program supports nonprofit organizations working to strengthen the public-interest cybersecurity ecosystem and protect vulnerable communities from growing digital threats through sustainable cybersecurity solutions. The program objectives include: Maintenance of critical cybersecurity infrastructure; Delivery of scalable support to secure Internet users from digital harm, including state-directed cyber activity and digital transnational repression; Advancement of a safer Internet for vulnerable groups and high-risk communities, including civil society and journalists. Launched in 2025 in collaboration with the Common Good Cyber Ecosystem Committee and a Strategic Advisory Committee, the Common Good Cyber Fund (CGCF) aims to sustain nonprofit organizations that provide essential cybersecurity services and strengthen the resilience of the global digital environment. |
| Eligible Activities: | The fund addresses the increasing frequency and sophistication of digital and cyber threats, which have significant impacts on vulnerable communities and underserved regions where digital protections remain limited. It recognizes the important role of nonprofit organizations in defending online civic spaces, reducing harm, and supporting communities facing targeted cyber risks. Through its first open call for applications launched in June 2026, CGCF supports organizations whose work contributes to stronger cybersecurity infrastructure, direct protection services, and safer digital practices for high-risk users.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |

|                                                      | Under the first objective, the fund supports the maintenance of critical cybersecurity infrastructure, including Internet security systems, threat detection and analysis, response-enabling services, and security-focused open systems that require long-term improvement and maintenance. The second objective focuses on providing scalable support to Internet users facing digital harm, including state-directed cyber activity and digital transnational repression. Supported activities may include rapid response assistance, secure onboarding, protective services, privacy-preserving coordination, and support models that help high-risk users prevent and recover from cyber threats. The third objective promotes a safer Internet for vulnerable groups and high-risk communities, including civil society and journalists. This includes work related to security-focused policy, standards development, responsible vulnerability reporting, threat mitigation coordination, and mechanisms that improve protection against digital risks. CGCF supports nonprofit organizations that align with the fund's objectives and provide cybersecurity infrastructure or direct services for high-risk digital actors. Priority is given to organizations capable of ecosystem building, especially those based in the global majority or those able to provide support to smaller organizations working in these regions. The Internet Society Foundation manages the grantmaking process, including application review, selection of grantees, and grant oversight. The Global Cyber Alliance chairs the Strategic Advisory Committee, while an Independent Program Review Committee provides diverse expertise from cybersecurity, civil society, journalism, policy, and research sectors. In 2026, the Internet Society Foundation expects to award at least USD $3.5 million through multi-year operating grants funded by the Common Good Cyber Fund. Selected organizations are expected to receive two-year grants generally ranging from USD $100,000 to $300,000, with a maximum total award of USD $300,000 over the grant period. |
| Eligible Applicants:                          | Applications are evaluated based on nonprofit eligibility, cybersecurity focus, alignment with program objectives, evidence of impact, organizational capacity, governance, and potential contribution to strengthening the wider cybersecurity ecosystem.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |

| Objective:                                                                  | The Innovate UK offers to support the development of innovative solutions for the earlier, fairer, and more reliable identification of special educational needs (SEN) among children and young people across the UK. The focus areas and objectives of this competition include earlier and more accurate identification of children and young people in the UK who have, or are likely to have, SEN, and consistent, high-quality assessment of each child's individual strengths and needs. Priorities include developing tools for deployment by frontline services, enabling identification of needs at the earliest stages of life, refining and testing high-potential approaches for rapid scaling across national education systems, mitigating inconsistencies in SEN identification and assessment across local authorities and educational settings, developing innovations based on prematurity indicators or early speech and language assessments, and using health data or operating in health settings with a clear link to education and educational outcomes. |
| Eligible Activities:                                                        | Projects should focus on developing, testing, and rolling out innovations that support the earlier identification of children and young people with SEN and strengthen assessments of their strengths and needs. Solutions should be capable of integration into education settings and demonstrate a credible route to real-world adoption and impact. The competition encourages innovations designed for use by frontline services, particularly at universal review points such as health and development reviews and the reception baseline assessment in England. It also supports approaches that identify needs before children enter formal education. Projects may involve refining promising methods to ensure they are ready for large-scale implementation across education systems. Innovations that help reduce variations in SEN identification and assessment practices between different local authorities and educational settings are also within scope.                                                                                              |

| Objective:                                                          | The Iranian Research Organization for Science and Technology proudly announces the opening of applications for the 40th Khwarizmi International Award (KIA), one of the most prestigious international scientific awards dedicated to recognizing outstanding achievements in science, research, innovation and technology.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Eligible Activities:                                                | The award supports research and innovation across a wide range of disciplines, including basic and applied sciences, engineering and technology, agriculture and natural resources, health and medical technologies, and emerging fields such as biotechnology, nanotechnology, green technology, information technology, aerospace, and various branches of engineering. The 40th Khwarizmi International Award Ceremony will be held in February 2027 in the Islamic Republic of Iran. The laureates will be honored in the presence of the President of the Islamic Republic of Iran, senior government officials, prominent academics, and distinguished scientists from around the world. To qualify for the award, applicants must submit completed research work. All completed applications will be evaluated by Scientific Committees composed of national and international experts who are specialists in their respective fields. Following the primary review process, a list of finalists will be prepared, after which the KIA Grand Jury will select the final laureates. |
| Eligible Applicants:                                                | Researchers, scientists, inventors, and innovators from any country are eligible to apply. Applicants may have previously received other awards, and the submitted research work must be fully completed at the time of application. No special recommendation or nomination is required.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |

| Objective:                               | Every year, they provide technical and financial support to associations that carry out biodiversity conservation projects on the four continents. These projects can take different forms but must always keep in their center the biodiversity conservation objective as well as the awareness of the local populations concerned by the project. |
| Eligible Activities:                     | This edition exclusively funds projects combining sport and biodiversity conservation. Projects focused solely on research or conservation without a link to sport are not eligible this year. Applications are invited from organisations anywhere in the world.                                                                     |
| Eligible Applicants:                     | The Foundation works with civil society organisation (CSO) whose primary mission is biodiversity conservation, with a track record of actions demonstrating this commitment (generalist or exclusively sport-focused organisations are not eligible).                                                                                               |

| Eligible Activities:                     | Each year, the most effective and sustainable projects are selected to receive support from a total funding pool of EUR 500,000. The prize is intended to recognize initiatives that demonstrate meaningful contributions to society and long-term impact. Supported projects receive additional visibility through publication on the iF Design website and exposure to a global design community, the design-interested public, and media audiences. Projects selected by the jury also receive an individual winner certificate. The prize is open to companies, design studios, NGOs, foundations, public and other organizations, social enterprises, and entrepreneurs. Student concepts are not eligible for submission. |
| Eligible Applicants:                     | The iF Social Impact Prize is an initiative that aims to support projects that create positive social impact and help address some of the most urgent challenges facing society. The programme welcomes initiatives that contribute to improving conditions through social action, community support, or corporate social responsibility activities.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |

| Objective:           | The Coefficient Giving is seeking applications to improve health and economic outcomes in a world potentially reshaped by transformative AI while prioritizing measurable impact, field-building and implementation.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Eligible Activities: | The initiative focuses on strengthening resilient communities and digital society systems by improving cultural infrastructure, access to justice, and frameworks for valuing and supporting community-level resilience and emergency preparedness. It also examines how transformative AI could reshape global health and biomedical research, particularly by accelerating drug discovery, clinical trials, regulatory processes, manufacturing, and health data infrastructure, while potentially shifting bottlenecks toward regulation, distribution, and access. The initiative provides total funding between 10 million and 30 million dollars, distributed across three grant levels. Exploratory grants are available for amounts below 100,000 dollars and support early-stage research, scoping work, and prototype development. Standard grants range from 100,000 dollars to 1 million dollars and are intended for research programs, hiring, and the launch of small initiatives. Large grants range from 1 million to 10 million dollars and are designed for building institutions, creating new organizations, and developing major policy or infrastructure projects. |
| Eligible Applicants: | Eligibility is global and open to individuals, academic institutions, think tanks, nonprofits, and appropriately structured for-profit entities. Proposals from low- and middle-income country contexts or those directly engaging with them are especially encouraged, as are projects building new organizations or engaging applicants who have not previously worked on AI futures. All funded work is generally expected to include policy engagement or public                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |

| Eligible Activities:                                                   | The program supports Dutch minority co-productions that strengthen international artistic and financial collaboration, promote creative and technical exchange, enhance the international visibility of Dutch films and film professionals, and improve opportunities for Dutch filmmakers to reach international markets. Supported projects must demonstrate artistic quality and include a substantial creative and technical contribution from film professionals based in the Netherlands. The scheme provides grants of up to €250,000 for feature films and feature-length animation projects with production budgets of up to €3 million, and up to €450,000 for projects with budgets exceeding €3 million. Documentary projects may receive grants of up to €70,000. The applicable indicative funding amounts are detailed in Chapter 2 of the Financial and Production Protocol. Applications are assessed under the general assessment framework set out in Article 5 of the General Regulations. An advisory committee evaluates projects based on their artistic quality and the extent of the creative and technical contribution made by Dutch film professionals. Only complete applications submitted through the Filmfonds Frame application system are considered. Projects with a pending funding decision under another Filmfonds scheme are not eligible to apply for this scheme simultaneously. |
| Eligible Applicants:                                                   | The scheme is open to Dutch minority co-producers representing production companies that have been established for at least two years in the Kingdom of the Netherlands, an EU Member State, the EEA, or Switzerland, and that continuously produce and exploit films and other audiovisual productions. The producer must have previously served as the majority producer of at least one feature film with a theatrical release in the Netherlands for feature film or feature-length animation applications, or at least one feature-length documentary with a theatrical release in the Netherlands for documentary applications. Applicants may submit one project per application round. Projects must demonstrate that 50% of the financing from the majority producer's country has been confirmed, that world revenues and any Eurimages or other European funding are allocated to the applicant on a pro rata basis, and that the requested subsidy will be fully spent in the Netherlands.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
