UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING

THE IMPACT

on the university

The University of Wyoming Endowment Challenge Program is a remarkably successful public-private partnership that has surpassed all projections. Whether it's academics, facilities, or athletics, this program has allowed the University of Wyoming to aspire to greatness. The legislature had the foresight and forethought to invest in the future of the state and the next generations of citizens and leaders.

The return on investment of the endowment program goes way beyond the leveraging of monetary support—it impacts public morale, student success, outreach, and our state's economic future. More than $206 million in endowment and facilities matches and an incredible 583 endowments and at least 20 facilities have been created or assisted by the program, and these funds support or will support UW's students, faculty, programs, and facilities.

Established in 2001, the program was designed to provide donors incentives to invest in the University of Wyoming and its academic and building projects—matching privately funded endowment gifts of $50,000 or more and facility gifts for special university building projects of $25,000 or more. It is not often that an investment yields a 100 percent return, but that's just what happens with this program—private support is doubled by the State of Wyoming. The people of Wyoming owe you a huge debt of gratitude.

on students

“It’s exciting to get a scholarship to help pay for school, and it’s really fulfilling to know my application has been accepted over the rest. Coming here, it’s closer to home, it’s a really great campus, and it seemed like the best stepping stone into vet school. They have a good pre-vet program and lots of opportunities to get involved. It just seemed like the right fit.”

CONNOR MADSEN
Freshman in Pre-Veterinary Medicine

Connor Madsen is from Wheatland, Wyoming, and came to UW to study pre-veterinary medicine. His goal is to eventually open a practice in Wyoming. To help him along his path, he received support from the Woodrow and Glyda May Scholarship and Student Enrichment Fund.

For decades, Glyda May and her late husband, Woodrow, have supported the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources with multiple gifts to help build facilities, enhance 4-H programming, and help students attend UW. Recently, she gave $300,000 that was doubled by state matching funds to fund a scholarship that has a preference for students from Platte County, Wyoming—Glyda and Woodrow’s home. Glyda says Platte County has given so much to her and Woodrow, she was honored to be able to give back to Platte County residents who are attending UW.

on faculty

“Student success is the top priority of UW College of Business. A named professorship or chair ... serve as an enduring legacy for the donor and allow the college to recruit and retain the best faculty. Equally important, endowed chairs are the starting point for developing cutting-edge programs, establishing research centers, and creating corporate partnerships—all which are critical for student success.”

SANJAY PUTREVU
Dean of the UW College of Business

Named chairs are vehicles by which a donor may support a faculty position at the university. This type of position is the highest honor among the named positions funded by gifts. A chair is generally filled by a tenure-track or tenured appointment but may be filled with a distinguished visiting scholar or in some cases a clinical professor.

The Mendicino Chair in Sales and Salesmanship was created by Frank and Barbara Mendicino and doubled by the state of Wyoming. It supports faculty in the Department of Management and Marketing in the UW College of Business.

on facilities

“The planetarium provides unique training opportunities for our students and undoubtedly sparks an interest in science in the next generation. That’s the importance, as I see it. You get kids hooked on dinosaurs and maybe space travel or astronauts and then they realize that ‘science is something I can do for a career. I’m going to take science and math when I’m in school and get prepared for college.”

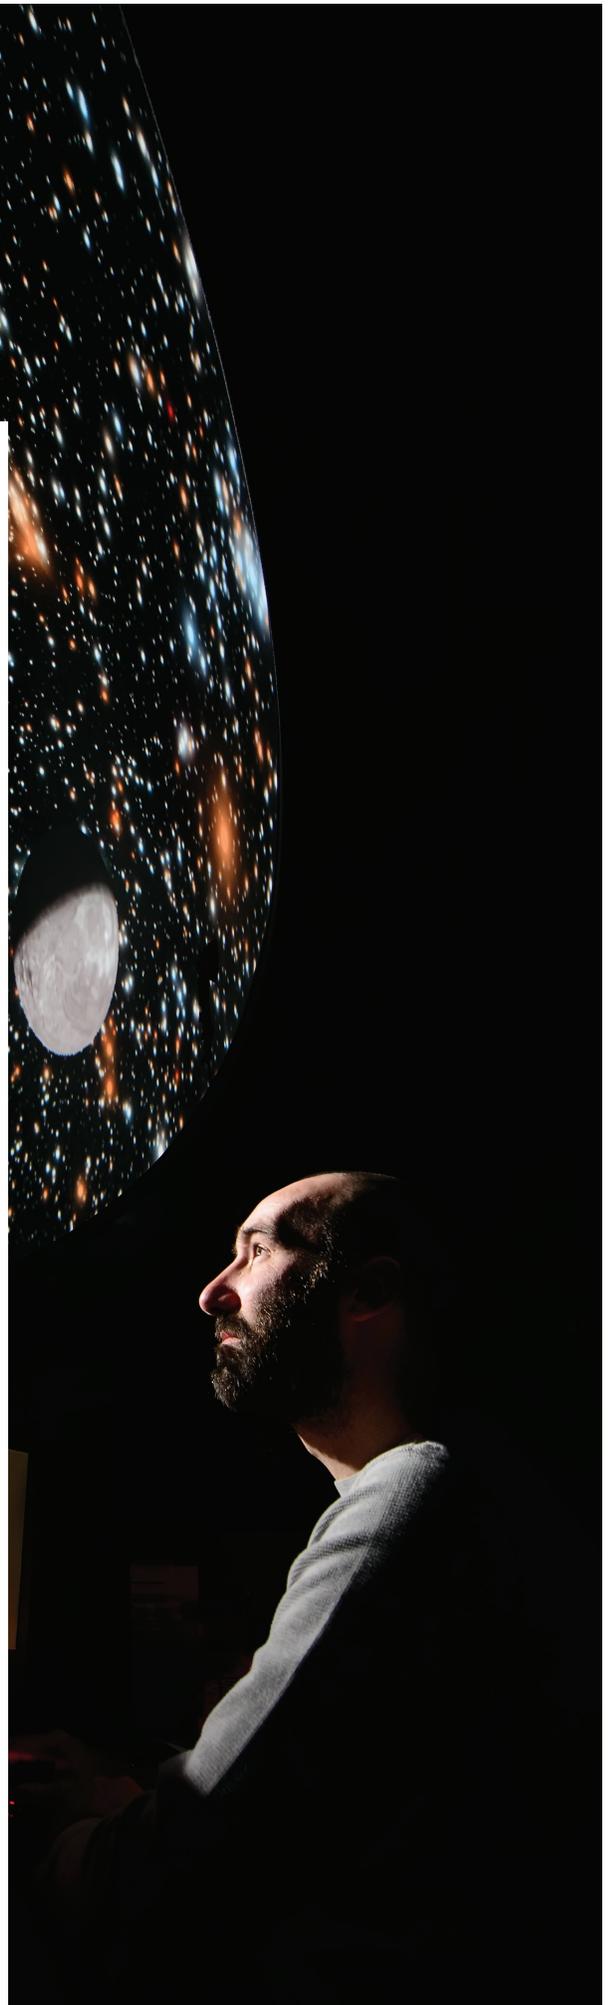

DANNY DALE

Chair of the Physics and Astronomy Department

Harry Vaughan’s Windy Ridge Foundation gift of $875,000, plus a $350,000 endowment doubled by state matching funds, has transformed the facility to provide immersive 3-D media experiences, and traditional star shows have been replaced with far more interactive presentations, similar to an IMAX theater. These renovations bring astronomy to life.

Planetarium patrons zoom through space at warp speed, fly by Jupiter and the other gas giants in our solar system, zip past Pluto, and pass through the outer asteroid belt and beyond our own Milky Way to explore distant supernovae, gigantic black holes, and the formation of galaxies in the farthest reaches of the universe.

The planetarium primarily serves those in southern Wyoming and northern Colorado, including school groups and the general public. The Friday night public shows have been sold out since the planetarium’s reopening.
