

UW Major Scholarship Initiative Honors Internship - Fall 2021

Help create a framework to support UW student applications to major national and international scholarships! Learn about different scholarships, such as Rhodes, Marshall, Fulbright, etc., and how to apply for them! What can UW do to support its student applicants?

The University of Wyoming is committed to increasing the number of scholarship opportunities for its students. However, applying for the world's most prestigious scholarships can be daunting. The intern's job would be to research different scholarship opportunities and to design ways to catalog and promote them on campus using social media, websites, etc.. In addition, the intern will provide the student perspective to the project: e.g., do these look like good opportunities? Are they intimidating? Where would you look for them? What kind of support would a student need to apply?

Qualifications

The ideal candidate will be self-motivated, with the ability to work independently. The student should possess strong communication skills, be organized with good time management skills, and be dependable. The candidate should be familiar with social media and web design. Ability to find creative solutions to problems is a plus!

Learning Outcomes

1. Familiarization with various major scholarships and their application processes including:
 - a. The variety of grants and scholarships available;
 - b. What kind of candidates these programs are seeking;
 - c. How the selection process works;
 - d. How to write personal statements;

Work Details/ Time Requirements

The position is flexible, requiring 10 hours per week for total of 133 hours. Schedule can vary based on needs of the employer and student.

To apply, email resume and cover letter to Dr. Stephanie Anderson at redhead@uwyo.edu. The deadline is September 15, 2021.
