About: The pride of the Northern Arapahoe Tribe was established in 1903 in the 380,000 acres of high desert, mountain country range. The purchase of the ranch was completed in 1940. The Arapaho Ranch is a wonderful example of a rejuvenated effort by the Northern Arapaho Tribe to reconnect with its strong traditions as a hunter/gather society whose very existence depended on its willingness to live in harmony with nature. The Ranch’s Natural Grass Fed Non-Hormonal Certification represents a strong commitment to biodiversity, and its grass-finished cattle show the Tribe’s belief in sustainable agriculture.

About: In the spring of 2012, the State School Board approved unification for FCSD #21. We changed from a K-8 school district with a charter high school (FWCHS) to a K-12 school district. Our high school has been operating out of modular buildings for the last ten years. Unification has allowed us to begin the planning phases for genuine high school facility, so that our students' educational experiences will be more equitable to what most Wyoming public high schools can provide. Regardless of the challenges we face, as 11th graders the class of 2013 scored well above the state average on the 2012 PAWS test, giving FWHS one of the highest reading scores in the county. In nine years of operation, 35 students have earned their diplomas through FWCHS and FWHS.

About: Legal Aid of Wyoming Inc. is a federally funded, non-profit law firm. Provides legal assistance to low income individuals living in Wyoming. Four locations: the administrative office is located in Cheyenne and satellite offices are located in Casper, Lander and Rock Springs. Legal Aid provides representation in many, though not all, types of civil cases. It cannot represent defendants in criminal cases. If you have been charged with a crime, you should request that the court appoint an attorney to represent you if you cannot afford one. Callers to the Hotline must go through an initial screening process to ensure they meet income guidelines as required by statute. Upon qualification, the caller is able to speak with an attorney regarding civil legal matters.

The WCADVSA is accountable to the domestic violence and sexual assault programs in Wyoming and the victims they serve. It provides “advocacy support”—the training, technical assistance, and other resources that support the work of WCADVSA’s member programs and partners in ending violence. The goal of WCADVSA’s work is to amplify the voices of survivors. Efforts support: (1) What survivors need to overcome abuse; (2) What systems (e.g., police, legal, medical, etc.) need to support survivors, and (3) What communities need to move beyond simply raising awareness to ending violence before it occurs.

About: The pride of the Northern Arapahoe Tribe was established in 1903 in the 380,000 acres of high desert, mountain country range. The purchase of the ranch was completed in 1940. The Arapaho Ranch is a wonderful example of a rejuvenated effort by the Northern Arapaho Tribe to reconnect with its strong traditions as a hunter/gather society whose very existence depended on its willingness to live in harmony with nature. The Ranch's Natural Grass Fed Non-Hormonal Certification represents a strong commitment to biodiversity, and its grass-finished cattle show the Tribe's belief in sustainable agriculture.

About: WCADVSA maintains a list of resources here: <http://www.wyomingdvsa.org/#!/student-life/c11m6>.

The WCADVSA is accountable to the domestic violence and sexual assault programs in Wyoming and the victims they serve. It provides “advocacy support”—the training, technical assistance, and other resources that support the work of WCADVSA’s member programs and partners in ending violence. The goal of WCADVSA’s work is to amplify the voices of survivors. Efforts support: (1) What survivors need to overcome abuse; (2) What systems (e.g., police, legal, medical, etc.) need to support survivors, and (3) What communities need to move beyond simply raising awareness to ending violence before it occurs.

About: Legal Aid of Wyoming Inc. is a federally funded, non-profit law firm. Provides legal assistance to low income individuals living in Wyoming. Four locations: the administrative office is located in Cheyenne and satellite offices are located in Casper, Lander and Rock Springs. Legal Aid provides representation in many, though not all, types of civil cases. It cannot represent defendants in criminal cases. If you have been charged with a crime, you should request that the court appoint an attorney to represent you if you cannot afford one. Callers to the Hotline must go through an initial screening process to ensure they meet income guidelines as required by statute. Upon qualification, the caller is able to speak with an attorney regarding civil legal matters.

About: In the spring of 2012, the State School Board approved unification for FCSD #21. We changed from a K-8 school district with a charter high school (FWCHS) to a K-12 school district. Our high school has been operating out of modular buildings for the last ten years. Unification has allowed us to begin the planning phases for genuine high school facility, so that our students' educational experiences will be more equitable to what most Wyoming public high schools can provide. Regardless of the challenges we face, as 11th graders the class of 2013 scored well above the state average on the 2012 PAWS test, giving FWHS one of the highest reading scores in the county. In nine years of operation, 35 students have earned their diplomas through FWCHS and FWHS.
