Q: What can you tell us about the new Black Studies Center?
A: The University of Wyoming’s Black Studies Center (UWBSC) uses culturally responsive teaching, rural community focused engagement, and evidence-based research to attract high-quality student to the University of Wyoming, who will actively contribute to the development of Black Studies. By engendering a more robust understanding of Black Studies, the UWBSC seeks to enhance the visibility and relevance of Black Studies and its capacity to directly impact contemporary social issues that plague America and the greater global community.

Q: February is Black History Month. Would you like to share upcoming events sponsored by your UWBSC?

Feb. 22, 5:00 pm to 6:30 pm: Film series Cinematic Realism and Racist Propaganda part three Rosewood

The final installment of the three-part film series investigates the legacy of Rosewood, Florida (1997). In 1923, like many southern towns during this era, Rosewood was pillaged by white mobs who killed several blacks and destroyed the town. This discussion will explore how the similarities of southern etique’s social conditions align with those of the Death of Black Wall Street. Panelists include Dr. Ulrich Adelt, Dr. Tracey Patton, Dr. Darnell Duane Jackson, and Dr. Larry Muhammad.

Feb. 23, 5:00 pm to 6:30 pm: A Tale of Two Towns Black Homesteaders and The Myth of The American Dream

A Tale of Two Towns: Black Homesteaders and The Myth of The American Dream will examine the complexities, and realities of the emergence of black towns in the West, particularly Wyoming and Colorado. Panelists include WPR’s Erin Rae Jones, University of Wyoming’s Brigida Blasi and Dr. Karla Slocum, University of North Carolina.

Feb. 25, 5:00 pm to 6:30 pm: Challenging Police Perspectives on the Controversy Surrounding Defunding

The controversy surrounding policing in America abounds. Many critics from the far ends of the pendulum find realities that do not mesh. This conversation will discuss the complexities and layered nuances of this contentious topic. Panelist include Aaron Applehans, Albany County Sherriff, Jael Kerandi, student, University of Minnesota, Kevin Lee, Lieutenant, Chicago Water Reclamation Department, Mike Samp, University of Wyoming police Chief. Black Studies Center.

Q: How does your department impact UW and the Laramie community?
A: The Black Studies Center spotlight historical truths that advance the accurate histories of black people in America and beyond, which directly contribute and enhance the University of Wyoming’s mission of diversity and inclusion.

Q: What is the best way to access your services?
A: Please contact the UW Black Studies Center by accessing the center’s website: http://www.uwyo.edu/aads/black-studies-center/ or follow us on Facebook at the University of Wyoming Black Studies Center.

Q: What is something that we don’t know about your department?

Q: Is there anything else that you’d like to tell us about?
A: The UW Black Studies Center strives to become a model that places Black Studies in rural areas at the forefront of the conceptualizations of race.

Celebrating Carrie Burton (Overton)
Black History Month
UW’s first black female student

Carrie was a young girl who grew up in Laramie. She entered the UW Preparatory School in 1903 at the age of 15. Carrie was an accomplished pianist, completed 4 years at UW, and transferred to Howard University in Washington D.C. earning a music diploma in 1913. Payroll News

The IRS issued a new form W-4, Employee’s Withholding Certificate, to be used beginning January 1, 2020. This change stems from the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act, which went into effect in 2018 and eliminated personal exemptions and doubled the standard deduction when filing personal taxes. This new form and accompanying Tax Withholding Estimator are meant to ensure you have the proper amount of federal tax withheld from your paycheck.

You may want to consider completing a new form W-4 if you want to more accurately account for your annual income. A new form W-4 is encouraged, for example, if you work more than one job, if your spouse also works and you file your taxes jointly, if you claim the child tax credit or other tax credit, or if you have high incomes and more complex tax returns.

When completing a new form W-4, you must complete steps 1 and 5. Steps 2, 3 and 4 are optional, but can be helpful in ensuring your tax withholding more closely matches your tax obligations. In addition, the IRS provides a Tax Withholding Estimator to help ensure maximum accuracy. To use the IRS Tax Withholding Estimator, you will need to have your latest pay statement handy, as you will be asked to enter the federal income tax withheld from your last paycheck and the total federal income tax withheld to date.

1095-C Forms

Employers are required to provide employees with a copy of their 1095-C reporting form, as required by the ACA, by March 2, 2021. UW uses a third-party vendor to process this document so it will not be available online. Only employees who were eligible for insurance through the State of Wyoming Group Insurance Plan, at any time during 2020, will receive a Form 1095-C. Some taxpayers may not receive a Form 1095-C by the time they are ready to file their tax return. While the information on these forms may assist in preparing a return, they are not required. Individual taxpayers should not wait for these forms and file their returns as they normally would.

Performance Evaluations

2020 Performance Evaluation documents for Classified staff and Administrative personnel are available in HCM. Evaluations should be completed no later than March 31, 2021. It is the supervisor’s responsibility to initiate the evaluation in HCM. Faculty annual reviews are completed in WyoFolio. Please contact Academic Affairs if you have questions.

Human Resources has developed a website, titled 2020 Performance Evaluations, that includes videos, FAQs, guides, and other support materials. Job descriptions and competencies can be found on HR’s Classification/Compensation website, and competencies are defined in the Competency Dictionary.

HR would like to remind you that the process of establishing new annual 2021 goals at the beginning of a performance year is a separate activity in HCM from the 2020 performance evaluation process. As a result, when you are ready to do so, you will establish your 2021 goals in the Performance Overview module in HCM.
