

BIOLOGICAL CONTROL

Biological control is the use of introduced beneficial insects and organisms (natural enemies) to help reduce pest populations. Examples of biological control agents include predators, parasitoids, pathogens, and competitors.

IPM

