

BIOLOGICAL CONTROL

Fish can serve as a biological control in aquatic environments such as stock tanks, pools or ponds by helping to reduce the amount of mosquito larvae. Certain fish species help to control unfavorable aquatic vegetation but may also feed on desirable plants.

IPM