

BIOLOGICAL CONTROL

The musk thistle head weevils are an example of a biological control used to limit seed production. Adults overwinter on the ground in litter or debris. In the spring, weevils lay eggs on musk thistle heads and feed on developing seeds.

IPM

