

CULTURAL CONTROL

Pests can adapt to particular crop species. Crops should be planted in rotation with an unrelated crop to reduce available food sources and relieve pest pressure. The normal life cycle of pests can be interrupted by allowing fields to lay idle or integrating crop rotation into growing practices.

IPM

