

HLSC 5990-40 (hybrid seminar), 1 credit
Justice, Equity, Diversity and Inclusion (JEDI)
in the Health Sciences

Fall 2021

alternate Tuesdays 2:45 to 4pm

Racism and other forms of oppression are alive and making us unwell at individual and institutional levels in public and clinical health in the US. But we can undo that.

This seminar offers short guest lectures and group discussions held bi-weekly (option of joining in-person or by Zoom), along with a WyoCourses platform to co-create a reading/resource list and plan and implement a JEDI-related action chosen by students. We will first explore manifestations and consequences of such oppression in health sciences and then move on to solutions to foster justice, equity, diversity and inclusion at individual and systematic levels.

For graduate students studying in the College of Health Sciences, and other graduate students in related fields interested in health sciences, such as physiology and nutrition. Faculty and interested advanced undergraduates can join with instructor permission.

Lead instructor: Dr. Christine M. Porter christine.porter@uwyo.edu co-organized by the College of Health Sciences DEI committee