MANUSCRIPTS:

Organization of articles is left largely to the author’s discretion. The Wyoming Law Review prefers articles that not only analyze the law as it stands but that also point to the direction the law should take. Articles with well-reasoned, bold, and innovative conclusions are welcomed. The length of articles is also left to the author’s discretion, but concisely written articles are a must regardless of length.

Unsolicited manuscripts are accepted and should be sent via email to the above email address or addressed to the Article Editors at the above mailing address. If the author wants the article returned, a self-addressed envelope with the proper return postage should accompany the submission. Article conventions are available by writing the Article Editors at the above e-mail or mailing address.

The Wyoming Law Review is published twice during the academic year, once in February and again in August.

The primary purpose of the Wyoming Law Review is to provide the legal profession with a source of scholarly materials of practical worth. The journal assists law students in developing and improving their legal analysis and writing skills. The views expressed herein are not necessarily those of the Wyoming Law Review, the University of Wyoming College of Law, or the Wyoming State Bar.
