

Book VIII.
Title XX.

If property held in common is pledged.
(Si communis res pignorata sit.)

Bas. 25.4.20.

8.20.1. Emperor Antoninus to Venuetus.

As your brother could not give a lien on the portion belonging to you, without your consent, so he, by giving his lien, benefited the creditors as to his portion (but that portion only). Hence, you may know that his contract could not prejudice your ownership.<sup>1</sup>

Recited November 18 (214).

---

<sup>1</sup> [Blume] To the same effect see D. 20.4.2.