Medieval Philosophy

Medieval Philosophy bridged the period between Ancient Philosophy, (Socrates, Plato, and Aristotle) and Modern Philosophy, (Descartes, Spinoza, Locke, Leibniz, Berkeley, Hume, and Kant).

The issues that drove medieval philosophers included the existence and nature of God, the Problem of Evil, the soul, free-will, existence, essence, causation, alchemy as science and theology, logic, the status of universals, and the question of how to understand the world.

Among those we will study are Augustine, Avicenna, Maimonides, Anselm, Aquinas, Ockham, Duns Scotus, and Paracelsus.
